SAILORS BATTLE WITH NATIVES IN HONOLULU RIOT

Fights Follow Demands to Punish Attacker of Officer's Wife.

LEAVES CANCELED; MARTIAL LAW FIXED

One Suspect Severely Beaten at Brink of Precipice; City in Turmoil.

Honolulu, T. H., Dec. 13 (U.P.).—Rioting broke out among civilians and American sailors in the Hawaiian capital today after the latter had demanded immediate punishment for five men charged with a criminal attack on the wife of a naval officer. A modified form of martial law finally was clamped down to quell the disturbances.

Horace Ida, a Japanese and one of the five recently tried for the attack, was kidnaped by heavily armed sailors who threatened to hurl him a thousand feet down the historic Pali (precipice).

Later they left him naked and unconscious by the roadside after beating him with belts and gun butts.

Eight riot calls kept police busy breaking up fights between sailors and civilians in various parts of the city.

All Leave Canceled.

Naval patrols were doubled and a company of marines was summoned from Pearl Harbor after a plot to wreck the Waikiki Park dance hall had been frustrated. Capt. J. D. Wilson, commander of the navy yard, and Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, jr., accompanied the marines.

Several hundred sailors on leave were arrested and all leave was canceled.

The disorders began late Saturday night when police learned that automobiles loaded with sailors, most of whom were armed, had arrived from the navy yard and that the sailors were threatening to act against the five men who were tried for the attack. The jury failed to agree at the trial.

Taken to Precipice.

As related to police, the trouble developed as follows:

One group of sailors in three automobiles kidnaped Ida from a downtown street. They carried him several miles up into the mountain back of the city, where the ancient volcanic peaks of Koolau and Waianae rise 4,000 feet in parallel ranges. The Pali is reached from a beautiful valley and one of the most famous scenic spots of the island is at the top of the great precipice.

Legend says the mighty King Kamahameha, struggling to unite Hawaii in the eighteenth century, ordered his army to drive hostile natives over the precipice to death on the coral rocks 1,200 feet below.

The sailors were alleged to have forced Ida to the edge of the precipice, where he stood before the threatening points of their guns. They appeared to be ready to hurl him over, when some one suggested that they hang him instead. They produced a rope and prepared for a hanging, but later relented.

Found by Motorist.

Ida was then forced to take off his clothes and the sailors beat him with heavy belts. The belt buckles cut deep into his flesh and he was also struck with the butts of pistols. His back was a mass of bruises and cuts and his head was battered. They left him half-conscious by the roadside, where he was later found by a motorist and taken to a hospital. His condition is not critical.

Meanwhile, other sailors clashed with civilians in various sections and reinforcements were summoned from the naval station, which is the largest owned by the United States.

The police were informed by a taxicab driver, who had transported some of the sailors, that they intended to wreck the Waikiki dance hall, near where the attack occurred. Riot squads and patrols were hurried into the district and broke up groups of sailors in the vicinity of the dance

Winston Churchill Is Injured by Auto

British Statesman, Visitor to New York, Slightly Hurt on Street.

New York, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Winston Churchill, British statesman and former chancellor of the exchequer, was taken to Lenox Hill Hospital late tonight after he had been struck by an automobile while crossing Fifth avenue at Seventy-seventh street. He was reported to be suffering from a sprained right shoulder and lacerations of the forehead and nose.

Mr. Churchill arrived from England Friday on the liner Europa and was stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria. He was accompanied by Mrs. Churchill and their daughter, Miss Diana Churchill.

Physicians at the hospital said Mr. Churchill was not in a serious condition, but would spend the night there for recuperation and rest. They said he very probably would be discharged tomorrow.

SPAIN'S PREMIER

MANUEL AZANA.

AZANA NAMED HEAD OF SPANISH CABINET

New Premier Will Organize Socialist-Republican Group to Rule.

Madrid, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—President Niceto Alcala Zamora selected former Provisional President Manuel Azana today to be the Spanish republic's first constitutional premier and to form a Republican-Socialist cabinet.

Senor Azana, who held the posts of president and premier in the provisional government, said after an interview with the president:

"Monday I will form a Socialist-Republican cabinet. Tonight I am going to sleep."

His selection came after a lengthy conference of minority and congressional leaders in which it was agreed a coalition cabinet would best serve the nation's interests. It was believed there would be little change from the old ministry, which resigned yesterday.

Earlier in the day President Alcala Zamora made calls at the Venezuelan, Bolivian, Peruvian and Guatemalan Legations and left his card. He attended an orchestra concert, receiving an ovation from the audience and returned to the palace to take up the cabinet problem.

President Juan Besteiro, of the constituent assembly advised him to continue the assembly until the constitution's complementary laws had been completed because "the assembly represents the people's will." He also recommended a ministry similar to the outgoing one or perhaps with a few more parties represented.

Injury May Delay Garretts' Sailing

Ambassador to Rome Hurt in Fall at Residence in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—An injured foot will probably delay until after the first of the year the return to Rome of American Ambassador and Mrs. John W. Garrett, who came here October 13 on a 60-day leave of absence, it became known today.

Recently Ambassador Garrett slipped on a rug at Evergreen, his home here, and twisted an ankle, breaking a small bone in the right foot. The foot had to be placed in a cast.

At his home today it was said that his plans for returning were indefinite and that, although he originally had arranged to go before Christmas, he and Mrs. Garrett probably would not sail until after the first of the year.

The Garretts entertained at their home Dino Grandi, foreign minister of Italy, and Signora Grandi over a week-end during the recent whirlwind trip of Signor Grandi to the United States to confer with President Hoover.

30 LOST AS SHIP SINKS IN STORM; 100 LIVES SAVED

Italian Tug Founders as Gale Hampers Work of Rescuers.

WATERS SEARCHED FOR OTHER BODIES

12 on Coast Guard Craft Die When It Is Wrecked on Algerian Shore.

Maddalena, Sardinia, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—The Italian naval tug Teseo sank with an estimated loss of 30 sailors and marines in a storm today off the coast of Sardinia.

More than 100 persons were rescued by the cruiser Trieste after hours of efforts to launch boats and shoot lifelines to the foundering vessel. Some were picked out of the heavy seas, where they were struggling to keep afloat.

The Teseo, a sea-going rescue tug, ran into a terrific gale yesterday, immediately after leaving Maddalena for Civita Vecchia, 300 miles across the Tyrrhenian Sea, on the Italian mainland.

S O S Calls Sent Out.

Its rudder was lost, its masts were swept away and its fires were extinguished by water leaking into the boiler room. For hours the vessel tossed helplessly in tremendous waves, while it sent out S O S calls.

After twelve hours the Teseo was only 20 miles from this coast.

The Italian ministry of marine sent rescue boats from Spezia, Civita Vecchia and Sardinian ports. The Trieste alone was able to ride the turbulent seas. The German steamer Trapani, the first to sight the helpless vessel, had been unable to aid her. The Trieste came into view at 5:30 this morning.

The cruiser rode back and forth close to the foundering boat for four hours, shooting lines that fell short and trying to launch boats in the violent seas.

Water Searched for Bodies.

after nearly 100 men had been rescued

The Teseo finally sank at 9:30 a. m., by the Trieste which picked up a few more before the cruiser started with the survivors to Golfo Aranci, in Sardinia. The cruiser Ancona remained on the spot to search for other survivors or bodies of the drowned.

Bone, Algeria, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Twelve men perished when a coast guard cutter was swept ashore in a heavy gale here early today.

The boat broke away as it was being towed into port during the storm, which had swept the coast for three days, damaging ships and harbor works.

Nazis Buying Air Fleet, German Paper Reveals

Berlin, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—The newspaper Die Welt Am Montag reported today that Adolf Hitler's National (Fascist) Forces are organizing an air fleet.

Twenty-five planes to be used for observation purposes by the Nazi leader's defense troops, the newspaper said, have been ordered from two different airplane builders. The contracts were reported to have been signed by "blinds" for Brown House, Hitler's headquarters.

"Missing" Opera Star Is Found Taking Rest

New York, Dec. 13 (U.P.).—The "disappearance" of Miss Santa Biondo, lyric soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company was explained tonight by her attorney, Alfred Burroughs, who announced that she was "resting" at the home of friends outside the city and would return to New York in a few days.

Old St. Nick Thanks Post For Its Toy Fund Efforts

Says He'll Be Able to See Every Child if Gifts Continue.

A cablegram of thanks was received yesterday by The Post Toy Fund from Santa Claus, who wired from the North Pole that he was starting out on his yearly trip around the world. The message said that through The Post Toy Fund every needy child in Washington would be taken care of if the citizens of the town kept that Toy Fund Snowball at work gathering up gifts of toys and money until he arrived.

Every donor to the fund will be able to hear the sleigh bells of Santa Claus as he dashes over Washington, drawn by his sturdy reindeer who love their task of distributing toys to the world's children. Strange to say, unless you do something at Christmas time to help those who, without your aid, could not have a Merry Christmas you will not be able to hear those magic bells that have rung of good will across the world for centuries past.

The Toy Fund Snowball gathered in $26 more on the first mail yesterday morning. That makes a total of $134.50, which is a fine start toward the goal of providing every needy child in the city a Christmas toy.

There are only eleven days left until December 24, when the fund must close in order that the parents of the children who are to be its beneficiaries may have the chance to buy toys for the tiny stockings which will hang hopefully from many a mantelpiece that night in the hopes "That Saint Nicholas soon will be there."

So send in your money and toys as soon as possible. In this case as

Child Killed, 15 Hurt By Arkansas Tornado

Cloudburst Comes After Second Twister in Three Days and Adds to Destruction Wrought in Several Towns.

Camden, Ark., Dec. 13 (A.P.).—The second tornado in southwest Arkansas in three days struck Camden and the nearby town of Waldo today, killing a 5-year-old girl, injuring about 15 persons and leaving many business buildings and homes in ruins.

A rain of almost cloudburst proportions followed the storm and added to the destruction.

Sweeping out of the southwest, the twister first struck Waldo, a town of a thousand people, and left only two or three business houses and a few dwelling undamaged.

Some of the largest structures in Camden, county seat of 7,000 population, were wrecked. The walls of the Methodist Church, largest in the city, and the courthouse were all that was left of those buildings.

A proposal to drop a $25,000 tornado insurance policy on the church as an economy move was voted down by the board of stewards last Monday night.

The one death was at Camden, Helen Colvert being buried under the wreckage of her home. He father, Howard Colvert, and a 2-year-old sister were injured.

The tornado failed to disturb the sleep of Nathaniel Holwerk, whose house was unroofed and whose neighbor's giant oak tree was uprooted. Holwerk first learned of the twister when he awoke at 6 a. m. Rain drenched most of the uncovered part of his house except a corner of his bedroom where he slept.

Despite the havoc wrought at Waldo only two persons were known to be injured. They were Mr. and Mrs. J. T. King. He is the Cotton Belt Railroad station agent. Half the station was swept away.

The rain that followed registered nearly 5 inches in this section, and buildings that were unroofed were flooded.

Several persons were reported injured at Stephens, near Camden, and at Waldo, the first town hit by the storm, two persons were injured and

RAIL UNION IS VOTING HEAVILY FOR STRIKE

Maintenance Group Ballots Run 80 Per Cent Against Taking Wage Cut.

Chicago, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Fred H. Fijozdal, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Maintenance of Way Employes, announced that brotherhood members on the Chicago & Northwestern are voting preponderantly in favor of a strike proposal.

The Chicago & Northwestern recently announced what the maintenance of way workers said was a 15 per cent cut in their wages. The railroad officials said the wage change constituted readjustment with wages of some employes being lowered and others increased.

A strike vote was started last week among the workers. Fijozdal said that about 80 per cent of the ballots received so far in a mail poll were against accepting the wage change. He said that "a strike of major caliber threatens unless the matter is submitted to arbitration." Tabulation of the ballots will be completed Wednesday.

Fijozdal attended a meeting here of railway labor union chairmen who voted to submit the railroad's request for wage reductions to negotiation between representatives of employers and employes and left for his home in Detroit at the conclusion.

New York, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Decision as to whether wage and employment problems of railway labor will be settled by peremptory action or by further arbitration is expected to be reached by Eastern and Western managements at conferences in New York and Chicago tomorrow and Tuesday.

Though reported prepared to apply for an immediate wage reduction under the railway labor act, the Eastern managements will decide tomorrow if they will name a committee empowered to negotiate to a conclusion, as proposed in Chicago, Friday by 1,500 union chairmen. The same question will come up in Chicago Tuesday.

Some among the Eastern managements are reported opposed to further, and possible protracted, arbitration. It was considered likely, however, their "elder statesmen" would insist this request of the unions be met.

Under the transportation act, railway labor contracts may be voided by the posting of a 30-day notice. This might lead, however, to negotiations extending over eight months or a year, should the unions decide to fight it, as they are reported ready to do. The unions, it is said, might

Virginia Football Victim Succumbs

Fredericksburg Youth Lives 2 Weeks, Back Broken, Awaiting Death.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 13.—Two weeks after he suffered a broken back in a football game here, John McCalla Boulware, 20-year-old Fredericksburg athlete, died today at Mary Washington Hospital. He was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Boulware, who survive him, together with two sisters. Funeral service will be at 3 o'clock Monday at the Presbyterian Church.

The youth was a star athlete at Fredericksburg High School, from which he was graduated in 1930. He continued his interest in sports and two weeks ago was playing quarter back with Battery F Rebels against the Washington (D. C.) Stantons, when he lost his footing and fell while running interference for an off-tackle plunge.

Opposing players fell on Boulware, and after scrimmage he was unable to rise, being paralyzed from his shoulders down. Three joints of vertebrae were dislocated. An operation was performed, but from the first, physicians held no hope for his recovery.

BODY OF BOY FOUND HANGING FROM TREE

Tragedy Is Discovered After Lad, 14, Attends Church in Maine Town.

Northeast Harbor, Me., Dec. 13 (A.P.).—The body of 14-year-old Everett Allen, of this town, his hands tied behind his back, was found this afternoon hanging from a spruce tree one-half mile from the church he had attended several hours previously.

Officials held out the possibility of suicide, but would say nothing pending an investigation which was begun immediately by Sheriff Ward W. Wescott, of Ellsworth, and Medical Examiner E. J. Morrison, of Bar Harbor.

The boy, son of Arthur Allen, formerly of Dexter, had attended Sunday school in the morning, but left the church before the services were concluded at noon. The body was discovered at 3 p. m.

Sheriff Westcott returned to Ellsworth tonight asserting he had a "deep mystery" on his hands. He planned further investigation tomorrow.

His inquiries here revealed that young Allen, a Boy Scout, was an adept at tying knots. Westcott put forward the supposition the boy was experimenting alone and hanged himself accidentally, or that the accidental hanging frightened away companions to whom he might have been displaying his ability in rope tying.

Young Allen's hands were tied with clothesline. His body was suspended by a heavy rope and his feet just clearing the ground.

Westcott said a pair of blue running "shorts" found nearby presented a problem as to ownership. Allen was fully dressed.

Two Fliers Unhurt In Forced Landing

Lieut. Sanderson, Alexandria, Was Piloting Plane to Washington.

Philadelphia, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Two Marine Corps fliers escaped injury when they made a forced landing in a cabbage field late today on account of bad weather.

The plane was piloted by Lieut. Lawson H. M. Sanderson, of Alexandria, Va., well known for his flying exploits in Nicaragua, Lieut. Clifford Pritchard was a passenger.

They were en route to Washington from Floyd Bennett Field, New York. Rain and mist have made visibility poor here all day and it was believed the fliers sought to land at Mustin Field in the Philadelphia Navy Yard. The plane nosed over after alighting on the rough field and was damaged badly. The two fliers notified navy yard officials and then went to the home of friends here to spend the night.

Debt Moratorium By Hungary Seen

Partial Suspension of Foreign Loans Is Rumored.

Budapest, Hungary, Dec. 13 (U.P.).—The government was reported tonight to have decided to proclaim a partial moratorium on repayment by Hungary of foreign loans.

Under the government plan, it was said, the interest and annuities on the state's loans would be continued, but the municipal and other loans would be suspended. The municipal and other loans require payment of some 200,000,000 pengoes ($34,000,000) annually.

The state's loans, which would be continued, are those arranged through the League of Nations and the prewar loans.

JAPANESE DROP GOLD AS BASIS; BAR ITS EXPORT

Conversion of Notes Into Metal Also Will Be Prohibited.

TOKYO STOCK MARKET CLOSED AFTER ACTION

New Cabinet Believed Set on Driving Chang's Army From Chinchow.

Tokyo, Monday, Dec. 14 (A.P.).—The Tokyo stock market was closed today owing to extremely bullish conditions following suspension of the gold standard.

Shares suddenly jumped 60 yen (about $30) during a very brief session of the market today.

The exchange probably will remain closed for two days. Other stock exchanges throughout the country also were temporarily closed as a consequence of similar conditions.

The new Japanese government, in its first official act, suspended the gold standard yesterday, effective from midnight last night, and reimposed an embargo on export of gold.

Issues Statement.

Premier Tsuyoshi Inukai and his Seiyuka party cabinet met within a few hours after their installation by Emperor Hirohito to settle on a financial policy. Finance Minister Korekiyo Takahashi subsequently issued a statement designe to deal with the critical economic situation which has been facing the country for months.

It was short and to the point, declaring anyone desiring to export gold specie or gold bullion must obtain permission from the finance minister. Violation would bring a penalty of three months imprisonment, it was announced, or a fine of not more than 100 yen (about $50).

510,000,000 Yen Overflow.

Japan removed her embargo on gold exports on November 1, 1930, and since then it is calculated that the outflow has totaled approximately 510,000,000 yen, more than half of which left the country since October 1.

The initial effect of the embargo appeared to be to halt two specie shipments to America of 15,000,000 yen each, contemplated by the Yokohama Specie Bank to complete deliveries of dollar bills. The bank may contest the ban on the grounds that its deal preceded the promulgation of the ordinance.

The finance minister's announcement was followed by a government statement explaining that since the gold ban was removed the nation's finances and economics have been precipitated into an unusual impasse, revenue experienced a marked decrease, the budget was shown to be unbalanced, industry slackened daily and the outlook for the future was gloomy.

Conversion of Notes.

The government decided therefore, the statement said, to replace the barrier in order to overcome a situation rendered serious by continued shipments of the metal. To make the embargo complete, it was said, the conversion of notes into gold would also be prohibited.

After disposing of the gold question the cabinet turned its attention to the problems it inherited from the regime of Baron Reijiro Wakatsuki—principally Manchuria. It was apparent that the ministers believed the most important angle was the ousting of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang's army from Chinchow.

In Seiyukai party circles it was said that while the new government has not officially laid down its Manchurian policy, the sooner the world realizes that Japan will not tolerate troublesome war lords along the South Manchurian Railway, the better it will be for international relations.

Premier Inukai has given few hints of how he intends to face the Diet when it reconvenes in January with

TILSON TO BE GIVEN 'CONSOLATION' JOBS

Ousted Floor Leader to Get Special Recognition Due to Loss of Post.

By J. S. McDONNELL.

Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, who was supplanted as Republican floor leader in the House when his colleagues in the present Congress named Representative Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, as their candidate for Speaker, is to receive special recognition to recompense him for his loss of the leadership post and committee places he gave up to take that place.

Representative Tilson has been given the only committee appointment he has said he wanted—a place on the Republican steering committee of the House, which will be headed by Representative Snell, next to whom Mr. Tilson will rank.

Representative Tilson will be one of the two Republicans in the House who will have an office in the Capitol. All of the other offices will be occupied by the victorious Democrats. Representative Snell will occupy the minority leader's office, near the rotunda, which has been occupied for the last several years by Representative John N. Garner, newly elected Speaker. Mr. Garner will take the Speaker's office and Representative Edward W. Pou (Democrat), of North Carolina, who will be chairman of the rules committee, will occupy the offices near the House chamber, which have been occupied by Mr. Snell. Mr. Tilson will take over the offices which have been occupied by Representative Frederick H. Lehlback (Republican), of New Jersey, as chairman of the civil service committee. These are above those of the minority leader.

Recognition also will be accorded the tall Connecticut member of the House whenever important special committees are named in the course of the session and Representative Snell, victor in the fight in which Mr. Tilson was dethroned, is said to be one of those who is in favor of such a program.

Considerable interest attached to the fight over the leadership because of its probable effect on the personal political fortunes of Mr. Tilson in the next election. Mr. Tilson came to the House first as representative-at-large from Connecticut to the Sixty-first and Sixty-second Congresses and was elected to the Sixty-fourth Congress and each succeeding Congress, including the present Seventy-second, from the Third Congressional District of Connecticut.

Despite this long period of service in the House, Mr. Tilson is said to have been at odds with J. Henry Roraback, Republican boss of Connecticut.

Against the Roraback disfavor, however, has been the fact that as Republican leader in the House Mr. Tilson was a national figure, and the argument that to unhorse him would furnish the Democrats with campaign material in national elections.

Now that Mr. Tilson no longer is Republican leader this argument does not hold, and undoubtedly his enemies will use the House action against him when it comes time to name the Bridge Experts May Claim Infringements on Systems

Rules Become Issue in Lenz-Culbertson Card War as Both Hint Opponents Are Violating Pact to Follow Own Laws.

New York, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—The battle of contract bridge systems, which has developed indications that a dispute is in the making as to whether each side is using its system as required, will be resumed tomorrow night with Sidney S. Lenz and Oswald Jacoby, 4,840 points ahead of Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

In five rubbers Saturday night, the Culbertsons won only two, yet reduced their point deficit by 810, mainly by a series of doubles and redoubles which sometimes were costly to them, but taken as a whole were an advantage. Lenz and Jacoby now have won 20 rubbers to 13 for the Culbertsons.

Culbertson is inclined to the belief that his opponents virtually are using his system, especially with original bids of one. He can cite hands which by the tenets of the "official" system should have been bid one no trump, but on which Lenz or Jacoby bid one of a suit.

On the other hand, Lenz and Jacoby profess enthusiasm over the intermediary two-bid of their system. At times one or the other has accused Culbertson of not following his system. But Culbertson proved the latest claim of his opponents in that respect so wrong the matter was dropped quickly.

Among the doubled contracts of Saturday night was an effort by Mrs. Culbertson to make a little slam in clubs. She was set one. A finesse would have given her the slam. The percentage was against the finesse. The bidding involved two overcalls by the Culbertsons of suits bid by their opponents. The players regard it as the best hand of the series so

U. S. TO REMIT PAYMENTS DUE ON WAR DEBTS

Nations to Be Told Sums Maturing Tomorrow Are Deferred.

ALIEN GOVERNMENTS NOT HELD DEFAULTERS

Mills Answers Borah, as Step Is Taken Pending Moratorium Vote.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The United States will temporarily remit the payment of $125,000,000 war debts from eleven European countries, due tomorrow, pending the ratification by the Congress of the Hoover moratorium. This was announced by Undersecretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills yesterday and is expected to take the form of a verbal aide-memoire by Secretary of State Stimson to the foreign countries whose payments were expected tomorrow.

The diplomatic representatives of eleven nations, whose payments on principal and interest to the United States have in some cases already been deposited in New York banks awaiting the clarifying action of the Secretary of State, were assured by the Undersecretary that they would not be "subject to any just criticism" if they failed to file their payments with the Treasury on the scheduled date.

The Italian Ambassador, Giacomo de Martino, had called on the State Department on Saturday to announce that the Italian government had already deposited with the fiscal agents of the Italian government in New York the necessary funds to cover the Italian debt payments. Similar action had already been taken by Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, and the French Ambassador, Paul Claudel, who were in a quandary as to how to advise their governments.

Will Not Injure Credit.

The statement of Undersecretary Mills will enable the various nations to take advantage of the moratorium without endangering their national credit as "technical defaulters." Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, had announced on Saturday soon after the visit to the Senate leaders of Mr. Mills that "so far as he was concerned these foreign governments who failed to pay on the 15th were in technical default."

Every foreign nation whose national financing has in any measure been handled by American banking institutions was greatly concerned with the implication of Senator Borah's statement. This was especially true of Poland, Roumania and Czechoslovakia. The reassuring announcement of the Treasury executive yesterday will enable them to take technical advantage of the generous terms of the Hoover moratorium without vitiating their credit in the eyes of American bankers.

The flurry of opposition to the President's moratorium is expected to die down as soon as Congress has learned that no connection is intended between the twelve months' debt holiday and the recreation of the World War Foreign Debt Commission. This was emphatically declared by Mr. Mills yesterday. He said:

"There has never at any time been any intention of coupling the President's proposal to recreate the World War Foreign Debt Commission with the proposal for a one year's suspension of payments on foreign debts."

Not Contained in Bill.

"The bill introduced covering the payment of foreign debts contains no reference to the re-creation of a debt funding commission."

The details of the Hoover moratorium had already been approved by every nation to which it had been submitted, with the exception of Jugoslavia. This nation under the dictatorship of a Balkan Mussolini had not ratified the debt holiday for internal political reasons. The United States, the originator of the plan, also has failed to ratify, but Undersecretary Mills declared:

"Since the appropriate committees of the Congress can not hold hearings on the proposed legislation until next week, it is obvious that

OPEN LETTERS MARK WET-DRY EXCHANGE

Sheppard Tells Raskob Rum Is Democrat Peril in 1932 Campaign.

(Associated Press.)

The prohibition controversy was put again before Congress and the Democratic party yesterday through the public channel of open-letter writing.

In a direct appeal to Chairman John J. Raskob, of the Democratic national committee, Senator Sheppard, of Texas, asserted "no step could be more perilous" to party success in the 1932 elections than Raskob's own endeavor "to involve the Democratic party in the prohibition controversy."

Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, wrote each national legislator an assurance against "an attempt to crack the Antisaloon League whip" in the gathering storm over resubmission.

Edwin C. Dinwiddie, secretary of the national prohibition board of strategy, meanwhile chose the public statement vehicle to convey his views that organized drys "do not concede the wets ever will succeed." He charged "Mr. Jouett Shouse (executive secretary of the Democratic national committee) has made of that committee a wet press agency for Mr. Raskob."

The sharpness of the statements reflected the emphasis both camps place upon the importance to their causes by the presidential election year.

Curran answered an announcement by F. Scott McBride that his Antisaloon League forces would oppose any member of House or Senate voting for resubmission. A roll call appears to be imminent.

Bishop James Cannon, jr., Dinwiddie and Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, were quoted in appearances before House and Senate committees in 1913 and 1914 as urging submission of the liquor question direct to the people.

Mrs. Boole was quoted as appealing for "the right of the people to pass judgment upon the settling of the liquor problem;" Cannon as urging "at least a division of the responsibility with the people," and Dinwiddie as saying, "I take it, the report of this (the eighteenth) amendment, and its ultimate passage by the Senate and House, does not commit any individual senator to this proposition."

"Thus," Curran wrote the members of Congress, "the Antisaloon League threatens to punish you for doing in 1931 what it begged you to do in 1914." He added:

"When the time for nomination and election comes, Reverend McBride and the political parsons who carry out his orders will not be the only voting Americans."

ARKANSAS TORNADO KILLS 1, INJURES 15

about a dozen business buildings and several dwellings were damaged.

Hundreds Made Homeless.

Hundreds of persons in the two towns were made homeless and were given temporary housing here and at Magnolia.

A company of National Guardsmen was called out here immediately after the storm to patrol the devastated area and assist in removing debris from the streets. Fire departments of Camden and El Dorado and volunteer workers were aiding them.

Waldo is less than 50 miles from the scene of a tornado near Texarkana early Friday which killed two persons.

The storm dipped only low enough at Waldo to catch the roofs of buildings, which probably accounts for the fact no more than two persons were hurt there. It then lifted and dropped again in the southwestern outskirts of Camden. More than 50 homes were demolished or damaged. In the business section a half dozen structures were virtually destroyed.

Both towns were left in darkness and the utmost confusion reigned. Communication with the outside was cut off for several hours.

Rising River Is Threat.

The rapidly rising Ouachita River and small creeks swollen by the rain of the last few days held a further threat to this section.

Highways were under water in some places. The Missouri Pacific Railroad reported its tracks near Norphlet, an oil field town, were submerged and trains were delayed. A washout on the Louisiana & Northwestern Railroad, south of Emerson, held up traffic.

Smackover Creek, which went on a rampage a year ago and caused heavy damage in the South Arkansas oil fields, was out of its banks in places and submerging the El Dorado-Camden highway for a short distance.

To add to the discomforts from the storm and high water, freezing temperatures were forecast for tonight.

St. Louis, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—F. A. Winfrey, assistant director of the Midwestern division, American Red Cross, and Miss Katherine Monroe, disaster worker, left St. Louis tonight to go to Camden, Ark., where they will survey the damage done by the tornado.

Winfrey said the local chapters of the affected territory were directing relief work.

Cloudburst Hits Louisiana.

Monroe, La., Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Rail and highway traffic was disrupted here today by the heaviest rainfall experienced in this section in several years.

The rain washed out the Illinois Central Railroad embankment between Calhoun and Chenlere, cutting off traffic between Monroe and Shreveport. Wrecking crews were busy at the washout tonight, and expected trains to operate on schedule by morning.

A bridge washed out between Monroe and Ruston delayed traffic on the Dixie Overland highway.

Water 5 and 6 feet deep covered the Monroe-Bastrop highway, causing heavy damage to new pavement. The road between Bastrop and Mer Rouge also was reported badly damaged.

Eleven Boy Scouts who had spent the night at a camp several miles west of Monroe found themselves marooned this afternoon when they attempted to return home. Firemen, using 40-foot ladders, constructed a makeshift bridge to allow the scouts to cross a stream where a culvert had washed out.

Rich-Poor U. S. Puzzles Man From Mesopotamia

By JOHN J. DALY

A LEARNED man from Ninevah—George Lamsa, lecturer and author—comes to America and beholds a strange apparition. He sees a Nation possessing untold wealth, greater than all the dreams of avarice, all the materialism of the ages, yet its people bankrupt.

In the land of milk and honey the milk is owned by the milk trust and the honey by the Busy Beehive of Industry, Inc.

To an outsider, it undoubtedly seems strange that hunger and starvation should show their ugly heads where food exists in abundance, even in superabundance; where the wheat crop is the greatest of all time, where crops of various natures—cotton, corn and cantaloupe—are so magnificent they can not be marketed except at a loss.

One of the reasons given for this plight by the man from Mesopotamia is that America is suffering from spiritual bankruptcy. Greed and lust for individual wealth, as he sees it, are the motivating forces that set the Nation on the way to the poor house, a road traveled by people riding in limousines, motor trucks and jitneys.

"The cure for your ills does not lie in stocks and bonds," says this Easterner who calls attention to his own land, Mesopotamia, where the spiritual and supernatural supersede all things material. There a national calamity is never known during a period of superabundance of the necessaries of life.

It is plain to be seen, of course, that the man is merely getting acquainted with America. Nor does he quite understand the spirit of the people.

* * * *

IN America, the richest men we have are the poorest and the poorest the richest, though they do not always know it. The oldest folks are the youngest, in spirit, and the youngest are ofttimes old beyond their years.

It is the glory of America that there is no other nation just like it on the face of the earth. Nor has there ever been one, or ever will be another. Here, every man is looking for a machine to do his work for him, the machine eventually putting the man out of business, retiring him to the sidelines.

* * * *

America is the place—

Where bankers borrow money to lend to borrowers who put the money in the bank so that bankers can resell it at a profit to men who lend them money in the first place;

Where green groceries are sold in the market cheaper than the cost of production in the field, to people who come from the farms to buy staples for the hired hands who, in turn, employ labor on their own properties;

Where the installment plan was installed for the purpose of enabling purchases by people who may pay as they go since they can not always go as they pay, the principle of the squirrel running around in the cage to catch up with himself for no reason other than to start on the chase again, losing himself in the merry-go-round;

* * * *

WHERE the young are finished with life before they begin with it, and the old get a new lease on life, having their faces lifted, after the last blush of youth has vanished, grandfathers and grandmothers younger than debutantes who abhor society because the 400 has stretched to 4,000,000 and the remaining legions, nouveau riche, have no respect for aristocracy, anyway, belonging to democracy;

Where every third family has a chariot ranging in size from the one-lunger to the twelve-cylinder, entire cities motoring out to the country on Sundays to see the great open spaces and unable to enjoy the scenery because of traffic congestion, back-firing and bumping, bending and bruising of fenders, drivers trying to outwit one another and the rest of the passengers giving instructions from the back seats;

Where the doctrine of the day is "Get it while the getting is good," and the question is, "After you get it, what are you going to do with it?

Where—but this is enough to show the bewilderment of a man from Mesopotamia who must wonder, after looking over the premises, what it is all about. Yet, we are having a mighty good time, or think we are, in search of happiness.

Text of Mills' Statement On War Debt Payments

The statement by Undersecretary Mills on the war debt payments, due the United States tomorrow, follows:

"There seems to be some confusion as to the discussion of yesterday between several senators and myself, accompanied by Mr. Herbert Feis, of the State Department, in respect of the postponement of payments on foreign debts during this fiscal year.

"Installments are due on December 15 from a number of debtor nations. Since the appropriate committees of the Congress can not hold hearings on the proposed legislation until next week, it is obvious that the Congress can not act by the 15th.

"However, inasmuch as 68 senators and 276 members of the House have already pledged themselves to support the legislation, it is equally obvious that when circumstances permit the action of Congress will be favorable.

Answer Must Be Given.

"In the meantime, some answer has to be given to representatives of foreign debtor governments in response to their inquiries as to the existing situation.

"Should such inquiries be made, the Secretary of State proposed to say verbally something along the following lines:

"'The President's proposal for a debt suspension of one year has been submitted to the Congress. Owing to the fact that the Congress only met last Monday and that the appropriate committees of the Senate and of the House of Representatives are not in a position to consider the proposed legislation prior to the 15th of December, it will be impossible for the debt suspension legislation to be enacted by that date. While recognizing that neither the President of the United States nor any of the executive departments of the Government has power to alter the terms of the debt agreements now in force, I desire to advise you that under the special circumstances in which the proposal was made and accepted and without intending in any way to vary the legal rights of this country, it appears to this Government that a postponement on the part of your government of December 15 payments pending action by the Congress would not be subject to any just criticism.'

"As a matter of courtesy, and in order to keep members of Congress fully informed, this proposed answer was shown by me to the senators attending the meeting yesterday, as it had previously been shown to some members of the House.

No Statements Signed.

"No senator or representative was asked to sign or approve such statement yesterday or at any time. No senator was asked to commit himself, and this seemed to be fully understood. I simply told them that I was there to keep them informed and to ascertain whether any one saw any objection to a statement made verbally in that form. No objection was voiced by any one present.

"Subsequent to the meeting this was fully explained to the representatives of the press in the presence of Senator Watson and Senator Smoot.

"May I add that there has never at any time been any intention of coupling the President's proposal to re-create the World War foreign debt commission with the proposal for a one year's suspension of payments on foreign debts. The bill introduced by Senator Smoot and Representative Collier covering the latter proposal was prepared in the legislative drafting bureau of the House at the suggestion of the Treasury, given by the Treasury to Senator Smoot and Representative Collier, and contains no reference to the re-creation of a debt funding commission."

U. S. WILL NOT HOLD NATIONS TO PAYMENTS DUE TOMORROW

the Congress can not act by the 15th."

The economic advisor of the State Department, Dr. Herbert Feis, accompanied Mr. Mills Saturday to the office of Senator James E. Watson (Republican), Indiana, and assisted him in the preparation of the statement which was submitted to the senators merely to keep them informed of the progress of the negotiations. This is the statement which will be used as the model for the verbal announcement of Secretary Stimson. Mr. Mills declared yesterday that the purpose of his visit was merely a matter of courtesy to keep the members of Congress informed and no legislator was asked to sign or approve the statement which will be textually the substance of Secretary Stimson's remarks to any diplomat who requests the position of the United States with regard to payment of debts tomorrow.

Position of United States.

The position of the United States, as Secretary Stimson will make clear, is as follows:

"The President's proposal for a debt suspension of one year has been submitted to the Congress. Owing to the fact that the Congress only met last Monday and that the appropriate committees of the Senate and of the House of Representatives are not in a position to consider the proposed legislation prior to December 15, it will be impossible for the debt suspension legislation to be enacted by that date.

"While recognizing that neither the President of the United States nor any of the executive departments of the Government has power to alter the terms of the debt agreements now in force, I desire to advise you that under the special circumstances in which the proposal was made and accepted, and without intending in any way to vary the legal rights of this country, it appears to this Government that a postponement on the part of your government of December 15 payments pending action by the Congress, would not be subject to any just criticism.

The text of this statement was read to Senators Watson, Reed Smoot (Republican), Borah, Walsh (Democrat), Montana, and Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi. Mr. Mills declared yesterday he had asked for their reactions and had requested if they had any objections. The Undersecretary stated:

"No objection was voiced by any one present."

It was apparent that if there was no audible resentment to the text of the statement, there were at least some reservations. Senator Borah declared last night that while he had voiced no objection, nevertheless he would not be bound by the action of the administration. He also added he had told this to Mr. Mills.

Ratification Held Sure.

Ultimate ratification of the Hoover moratorium is generally conceded in Congress. Mr. Mills pointed this out yesterday when he declared that already 68 Senators and 276 members of the House had pledged themselves to support this legislation. Representative Rankin (Democrat), Mississippi, will however, propose an amendment barring further debt revision.

Senator Smoot, one of the members of the silver bloc, will submit a counterproposal, which would permit the payment of the war debts in silver. Such a proposal would undoubtedly be welcomed by Great Britain, which has great stocks of the pale metal in her colonies, but it is expected that vigorous objection will be raised by France, which is the second important debtor nation after England. Senator Smoot is chairman of the Senate finance committee.

The moratorium proposal will be submitted to the Democratic House this week.

CONGRESS TO DRIVE FOR ORGANIZATION

Senate and House Hopeful of Completing Committees and Starting Work.

(Associated Press.)

Congress will unclog its wheels from organization troubles this week and face the mass of international and domestic problems that are piled before it.

President Hoover's one-year moratorium gets the first attention of the Democratic-controlled House. It will be taken up by the ways and means committee in hearings beginning tomorrow, with ratification expected before the Christmas recess.

The President's urgent domestic program also will get started in the Senate. The Senate special banking committee, headed by Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, is ready to report a comprehensive measure revamping the national banking laws and tightening the door against use of Federal facilities in speculation.

Democrats to Draft Program.

Drafting the important Democratic legislative program will be begun tomorrow by the party's joint policy committee. A tax policy is its first problem.

Organization of the Senate, confused by the fight of the Western Republican independents against re-election of Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, as president pro tempore, probably will be completed within a day or two.

Friends of Senator Moses believe his chances for reelection are doomed by the determined stand of the party independents, who have had some help also from a few regulars. Election of the Democratic nominee, Senator Pittman, of Nevada, is in prospect. Efforts to get a compromise Republican in place of Senator Moses have failed thus far.

The Senate banking committee will decide early this week on the program for consideration of the several proposals advanced by President Hoover. The plan for a $500,000,000 reconstruction corporation probably will get the first call of the committee.

RULES MADE ISSUE IN BRIDGE CONFLICT

Culbertson bid a diamond, Lenz a spade, Mrs. Culbertson two clubs and Jacoby two hearts. Then the fireworks started. Culbertson bid three hearts, showing control of the first lead of hearts. Lenz passed and Mrs. Culbertson bid three spades, showing control of the first lead of spades. Jacoby passed and Culbertson jumped to six clubs. Four clubs or five clubs would have been too little to show Mrs. Culbertson slam possibilities.

Reflects Ten Minutes.

When the dummy went down, Mrs. Culbertson took ten minutes to reflect. She must lose the ace of diamonds. She can finesse the queen of hearts on the theory that Jacoby, having bid the hearts, must have the king. But Jacoby has proved himself a light bidder, and if the clubs are divided three-two, the finesse in hearts is unnecessary. The mathematical chances are all in favor of the clubs being divided three-two, but in this case there was an exception, and Mrs. Culbertson was set.

Jacoby led the seven of hearts and the trick was taken with the ace in dummy. From dummy the king of diamonds was led and the trick went to Jacoby's ace. He led the five of diamonds and Mrs. Culbertson took the trick with her jack. Then she played three rounds of clubs from dummy. Two spades were discarded by Lenz. From dummy Mrs. Culbertson led the three of hearts and trumped it from her own hand. Then she led the ace of clubs and took Jacoby's last trump. West and North threw away a heart and a diamond, respectively. Mrs. Culbertson led a small diamond to dummy and discarded two small spades on the two long diamonds. She lost a spade trick at the end.

Agree on Fault.

On hand 166 in rubber 30, Culbertson redoubled after being doubled by Jacoby on a four-heart contract. Culbertson fulfilled his contract. Jacoby and Culbertson agreed after the hand was played that the double was unjustified. Here is the hand:

Lenz (North—Dealer).

North and South were vulnerable.

The bidding: North pass; East, one club; South, two diamonds; West, two hearts; North, pass; East, two spades; South, pass; West, three hearts; North, pass; East, four hearts; South, double; West, redouble! North, East and South pass.

The opening lead was the eight of diamonds.

The bidding by the Culbertsons was a pretty denial by each of support in trump suits offered by partners until by a rebid one partner showed that normal trump assistance was unnecessary. The Culbertsons deduced that their honor trick count was at least 5½ and that game was therefore possible. Hence the redouble by Culbertson. Jacoby's double was based purely on three quick tricks in his own hand. He gambled that Lenz could take at least one trick. Lenz had a bust.

Women of India Buying U. S. Shoes for Quarter

Because they are less concerned with up-to-the-minute styles, native women of Calcutta and Bombay are enjoying American-made shoes at 25 cents a pair.

A report to the Commerce Department from Trade Commissioner Wilson C. Flake, at Calcutta, reveals that out-of-style shoes are consigned to Indian merchants by merican factories at 8 cents a pair. Most of these comprise the high-top lace shoes stylish eight or ten years ago.

"They are now being worn by ...ics, who first remove the high heels and the boot part of the upper leather, the heels being used as fuel and the surplus leather being made into cigarette cases and jewelry boxes," Flake reported.

'BIG THREE' AGREED UPON REPARATIONS

U. S., British and French Delegates May Present Plan Tomorrow.

Basel, Switzerland, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—A basis for a final report was decided upon today by the "big three" of the Young plan advisory committee, which is studying Germany's capacity to pay reparations.

Walter W. Stewart, of the United States; Sir Walter Layton, of Great Britain, and Prof. Charles Rist, of France, agreed upon the plan after private conversations yesterday and frequent consultations with other members of the committee today. Albert Benedule, Italian representative, is expected to present the plan to the full committee Tuesday for adoption or rejection.

Observers remarked that this step marked the official opening of the second phase of the experts' work. Consideration of technical questions has about been finished and discussion of political questions is beginning.

Scope Is Discussed.

A spokesman for the committee, who revealed the existence of the plan for a report, said the chapter headings had been drawn up and the scope discussed, but that this did not necessarily mean every one was in agreement on what the chapter would contain.

It was learned elsewhere that Prof. Rist, Sir Walter Layton and Dr. Carl Melchior, Germany's representative, probably would be chosen to draft a document containing recommendations to the countries concerned. Their names were discussed privately, but it was understood no decision had been made.

Quarters close to the committee said all the delegates, excepting the neutral members, who have not expressed themselves and Prorist, who had another idea, were insisting on signing the final paper before Christmas. The French delegate was understood to want the paper written during the holidays and signed early in January.

General Discussion.

The official spokesman said tonight general discussion would start in the middle of the week. A number of delegates will have something to say regarding the effect of reparations upon their respective countries, he added.

A technical subcommittee wrestled again today with the problem of Germany's assets abroad. This appeared to be the hardest knot the experts found. It was reported the subcommittee, headed by Maurice Frere, of Belgium, was almost ready to intimate it was impossible to obtain a reasonable figure regarding these German holdings.

The German delegation here now numbers ten with the arrival of Otto Schmitz, industrialist, described as a confidential adviser to Chancellor Bruening on reparations.

Lipton's Successor Named.

New York Dec. 13 (A.P.).—The election of Lord Inverforth as president of Thomas J. Lipton, Inc., succeeding the late Sir Thomas Lipton, was announced today at the company's offices in Hoboken, N. J.

DRY LAW DEFENDED AS CAMPAIGN OPENS

Evils of Prohibition Offset by Its Benefits, Claim of Drive Leaders.

Opening an intensive three-day campaign, speakers of the Allied Forces for Prohibition told largely attended mass meetings yesterday that "every claim of evil results from prohibition made by the wets can be matched by a claim of social good made by the drys," and that reports of drinking among athletes and other college men are greatly exaggerated.

The speakers were Col. Raymond Robins, vice chairman of the National Citizens Committee of One Thousand, and Robert C. Ropp, editor of Voice of Allied Youth. Col. Robins spoke yesterday afternoon at Calvary Baptist Church and last night at the Willard Hotel, while Mr. Ropp addressed mass meetings at the church during the afternoon and evening.

Claims for Dry Law.

Col. Robins, in his address last night, termed as "elective anarchy" any effort to select one portion of the Constitution or the public law, for loyalty and obedience, and reject other portions. He followed this with the challenge that the drys have a claim of social good for every claim from the wets of evil results from prohibition.

"Those who want repeal of the eighteenth amendment or the Volstead law," he declared, "are in no genuine agreement as to what form of control of the liquor traffic should be substituted for prohibition."

Speaking last night at the Calvary Church, Mr. Ropp averred that he knows from experience that college young people "have suffered grievously at the hands of certain yellow sheets whose sole source of information is the week-end football game where the townspeople bring out the liquor and the youngsters are blamed for drinking."

Defends Students.

Pointing out that alcohol and athletic excellence don't go together, Mr. Ropp observed that the greatest thrill an athlete derives from his participation in sport is honest achievement and a good record made possible by faithful training and clean living. He also defended fraternities against the charge of drinking.

"For every boy who carries a hip flask," he declared, "there are 999 who do not touch the stuff, and most girls I have known would refuse a drunken date."

Senator Morris Sheppard, of Texas, coauthor of the eighteenth Amendment, presided at the afternoon meeting, which was attended by several hundred. Daniel C. Roper, general chairman of the Washington committee, was in charge of the meeting. Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, presided at the evening meeting.

Col. Robins' Talk.

Col. Robins, a one-time gold prospector who confesses that "he has been through the mill," evoked a thunder of applause when he asserted "that the nineteenth amendment, granting woman suffrage, is the best guarantee that the eighteenth amendment will never be repealed." "The saloon," he added, "as a poor man's club is as dead as a cave man's club."

"The liquor traffic has always been a criminal and lawless one, violating the rules of the game, caring nothing for human progress and well-being, fighting only for its own special privilege to exploit and imbrute the people. It coined blood and brain and soul of the people into profits for a small group."

The speaker attributed the passage of the Federal prohibition amendment to the fact that the wet minority would not allow the dry majority to be dry. "They kept forcing lawless liquor upon the communities that had voted dry," he said.

Col. Robins summed up prohibition "as the most distinctive American domestic policy, discussed longer, approved by more and larger legislative majorities and sustained by more judgments of the courts, from the highest to the lowest, than any other domestic policy of our own country."

GERMAN POLICE KILL ONE; FOUR ARE SHOT

Efforts to Take Red Speakers Result in Riot; 50 Hitler Followers Seized.

Hamburg, Germany, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—One person was killed and four were wounded when police fired into a Communist demonstration at the famous "Dom" Christmas fair today.

Panic started among thousands of persons at the fair after the fighting. It took almost two hours for police reinforcements to gain control.

The Communists, disregarding the holiday political "truce" proclaimed by Chancellor Bruening in his recent emergency decree, attempted to harrangue to the crowds at the fair.

Hundreds of sympathizers attacked the police with stones and iron bars as they attempted to arrest the speakers. Meanwhile the crowd formed a procession, shouting "down with Bruening" and singing the "Internationale." Outnumbered, the police drew their pistols and fired.

Aurich, Germany, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Fifty followers of Adolf Hitler, German Fascist leader, were arrested in a police raid on a meeting here today. They were wearing their "Nazi" brown shirt uniforms, which are banned in public.

Warsaw, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—A communist was killed today when a Secret Service operative was forced to use his revolver in self defense against a group of radicals posting bills.

Police arrested 25 persons whose names were found on a list taken from the coat lining of a communist agitator named Sinow, who was taken into custody when he arrived several days ago from Moscow on a forged passport. Propaganda concerning a "hunger day" on Tuesday was confiscated.

Business Men Invite Bingham to Give Talk

Senator Hiram Bingham, president of the National Aeronautic Association, and Representative Frank R. Reid, president of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, have been asked to address a meeting of Washington business men tomorrow night at the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Purposes of the meeting are described as to discuss recent recommendations of President Hoover and the Interstate Commerce Commission for the regulation of the newer methods of transportation competing with railroads. Business interests of Washington are particularly aroused because they claim that proposed interstate regulation of trucks and buses would affect all business of a purely local nature inasmuch as the retail trade of the city extends into Maryland and Virginia.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 135

THE above picture depicts the old Butler mansion, which once housed the United States Public Health Service, located at 3 B street southeast. It has since been razed.

The establishment was built by the late Maj. Gen. Benjamin Butler, the stormy petrel of the Federal Army, during the bitter years of the Civil war. After the close of the conflict he desired a place where he might retire from the turbulent strife of battlefield and public life, and write his colorful, if vitriolic, memoirs.

Gen. Butler is best known to posterity as the military governor of New Orleans and for the harsh and tyrannical severity of his regime. In fact so bitter were the proponents of the Confederacy toward his rule that Jefferson Davis ordered him captured and hung as a common felon. Long before his participation in the Civil War he was a leader of the radicals in the Massachusetts Legislature, later being elected to Congress. He also served under Gen. Grant at Richmond and Petersburg.

Later the stately mansion was occupied by Chester A. Arthur during the first few months of his administration, and after passing through many hands, became the home of the United States Public Health Service.

2-BILLION TURNOVER SLATED TOMORROW

Is Result of Government Financing Operations; Dividends Due.

New York, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—The Nation's banking structure will have a taste of 1929 volume of business Tuesday when it will be called on to handle the biggest turnover of the year, amounting to around $2,000,000,000.

This huge task will result from Government financing operations, including the new Treasury offering as well as the receipt of fourth quarter income tax installments. Also, a large dollar total of dividends will be paid on corporate stocks.

In addition, completing its work of alloting $1,300,000,000 of the new Treasury certificates, which have been oversubscribed, the Government will face the assignment of retiring nearly $1,000,000,000 of maturing paper. It is estimated that around $700,000,000 of maturing notes and certificates will be tendered to the Government in payment of subscriptions to the newly issued Treasury securities. A balance of roughly $600,000,000 will be paid from cash.

Income tax installments, according to estimates, will total $250,000,000 to $300,000,000, which is substantially below the corresponding figure of last year.

Another sizable item figuring in the mid-month transactions will be the payment of $95,000,000 interest on Government debt.

No accurate estimates are available of the amount of money that will be paid out in dividends, but the fourth quarter payments by the Standard Oil group alone will approximate $66,000,000. In all, 160 corporations will send out dividend checks on or about December 15. Standard Oil of New Jersey will be the largest single payer.

STOCK SALE TO SAVE SURTAX IS ASSAILED

Bacharach Tells Operators Law Can Be Amended to End Deduction.

(United Press.)

Stock market operators who seek to avoid a possible increase in surtaxes by selling stocks and establishing a paper loss, were threatened yesterday with congressional retaliation by Representative Isaac Bacharach (Republican), of New Jersey. The law could be amended to eliminate the deduction allowed for such losses, he pointed out.

Mr. Bacharach occupies a prominent place on the House ways and means committee, which will draft the new tax bill. He is regarded as a strong administration supporter on most fiscal questions.

Mr. Bacharach, in a formal statement, also took pointed issue with Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon's tax-increase plan.

In connection with "loss-taking" on the stock market, a custom largely practiced toward the end of the year, particularly when prices are low, Mr. Bacharach said he was convinced that recent heavy stock sales, following the announcement of the Mellon-Hoover plan, were based on an effort to avoid increased surtaxes.

He warned those who are selling to "proceed with caution" since there is no constitutional requirement by which Congress must exempt such paper losses.

"I trust the great majority of citizens will realize the emergency facing the Government and not resort to legal tax evasion," he said, adding, "this may, in fact, ultimately work out to their disadvantage."

Mr. Bacharach charged that Mr. Mellon, in attempting to revive the 1924 tax statute, had differed from it on several important particulars. These included failure to revive the gift tax and failure to allow smaller corporations a $3,000 exemption under the corporation income tax. "Even the 1924 act allowed a deduction of $2,000," Mr. Bacharach noted.

GEN. ELSHIN PLACES MEMORIAL WREATH

Tribute to U. S. Soldiers Is Paid by Commander of Russian Veterans.

Before a distinguished group, Gen. Alexander J. Elshin, international commander of the Russian Veterans Society of the World War, yesterday afternoon placed a wreath on the District World War Memorial in Potomac Park.

In presenting the wreath the general said: "Now at last the Russian invalids and veterans of this war have found peace and shelter under the protection of the American flag. They consider it their foremost and sacred duty to pay a tribute to the warriors of this great American Nation who have fallen for the common cause."

In a short talk, Gen. Alexis M. Uzefovich, commander of the District post, said that the monument would be a consolation to the thousands of Russian soldiers who were forced to leave their fatherland and seek the protection of the United States after the revolution.

Benediction was pronounced by the Very Rev. Viancisloff Gindlin, rector of St. Alexander's Russian Orthodox Church.

Other speakers on the program were Lieut. Col. Bojidar P. Stoianovitch, secretary of the Jugoslavian Legation; Gen. Wladimire A. Levandovsky, representing Col. U. S. Grant, U. S. A.; Charles H. Bachman, secretary of the local post of war veterans, and Lady Louise Montague, an honorary lieutenant colonel of the United States Army during the World War and founder of the International Humanity League. There were 200 persons present.

Puritan Not Blue Law Fanatic, Says Pastor

The real Puritan was not a fanatic for blue laws nor intolerant toward other churches, the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy said yesterday in a Forefathers' Day sermon at the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

Answering the question, "Shall we discard the Puritan?" Mr. Clinchy declared that the Puritan was not a man with a small and narrow soul.

"We are free because of the Puritan passion for liberty and we shall not discard the Puritan until we find greater words in the human language than God, man, liberty and duty."

MARCH DEFINITELY LAID TO COMMUNISM

Doak Points to Evidence in Placing Blame for Hunger Invasion.

Documentary evidence has proved that the "hunger march" was entirely the inspiration of communism, Secretary of Labor Doak declared yesterday.

The 1,700 marchers who a week ago today made their demands at the Capitol and at the White House were directly controlled by outlawed communistic organizations, the Secretary charged.

Sometime ago, he said, he ordered an investigation of communist activities as they affectel labor, and has received reports and documents of communist origin which prove the responsibility for the demonstration.

Leaders Are Named.

In a formal statement the labor head declared that most of the participants were identified with communism.

He named John J. Ballam, William F. Dunne, Fred G. Biedenkapp, William Z. Foster, William Weistone and Herbert Benjamin as known Communist leaders.

The March was planned by the Communist central committee, Mr. Doak said, and added that preparations included meetings of the Trade Unity League, which has been outlawed by United States courts.

Paragraph Is Cited.

A paragraph in the direction for the march reads: "Groups of comrades should be assigned to make contact with the workers in the flop houses, employment agencies, and welfare yards. Raise special demands and involve them in hunger march. Pay special attention to employment agencies in Negro sections, hiring scabs for longshoremen strike."

Evidence also has been obtained, Mr. Doak said, of attempts to seduce National Guardsmen from their oath of allegiance.

"The bosses are preparing for war. That is why they are sending you off to give you three weeks of military training in these camps throughout the country," was quoted by the Secretary as an extract from a leaflet spread among the guardsmen while they were in summer camps.

drag the case out interminably, and meanwhile the roads would be no better off.

Should the Eastern lines move under the 30-day clause, it is believed they would ask a 15 per cent cut, with no provision for reinstatement to present levels. If on the other hand, the matter is settled amicably, they are reported willing to agree to a 10 per cent drop for a stipulated period of not less than one year.

The Metropolitan Opera committee of Washington, through its chairman, Mrs. Tracy Dows, announces that the "little season" of grand opera from America's foremost opera house will not be given in the National Capital this season.

The committee, now formed into the Washington Opera Association, Inc., feels that for this year alone it its scarcely fair to the guarantors to ask them to pledge so large a sum of money, with the risk of perhaps not filling the houses at this time.

Grand opera is a luxury, unlike concerts that may be given at a moderate price. Seats must be high when the public demands all-star casts and the glamour that a Metropolitan Opera performance means.

The Washington Opera Association, Inc., had the genuine satisfaction of presenting last April a three-opera season of the Metropolitan Opera Company at a profit, with a premiere here of Deems Taylor's "Peter Ibbetson." It established a precedent that the association desires to maintain. The association, with Mrs. Tracy Dows as chairman, includes Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mrs. Charles J. Bell, Mrs. Franklin H. Ellis, Mrs. George Mesta, Mrs. James S. Parker, Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, Miss Elizabeth Howry and Andrew Wylie.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

THE ADVANTAGES OF COLD FEET.

IF a person is improperly clothed he is likely to catch cold. The infection may take the form of rheumatism or neuralgia, pneumonia, bronchitis, sore throat, a common cold—without exhausting the list of possibilities. These are accepted facts that are about to be established. Every one knows them and, what's more, they have long been a part of our body of common information. Science is establishing them—supplying basic proof of the correctness of common information.

A late study, and a very thorough one, comes from Dr. F. B. Talbot. Using delicate heat-measuring instruments, he proved that the temperature of the skin varied in different regions. The hands and the feet not only feel cold but they are cold at times. The local temperatures vary with variations in the temperature of the atmosphere.

Some parts of the body are more readily chilled than others. Exercise, work and eating are factors not only in the production of heat but in the amount which is thrown off by the skin. Shivering is one of nature's great remedial measures. It is far superior to taking a drink of hot whisky, for the latter has small virtue, and none of that is due to the whisky. Shivering is a muscle contraction having as its purpose the manufacture of heat, the purpose of which in turn is to warm up the body. Even gooseflesh is divinely appointed. It serves to decrease the loss of heat when too much would otherwise be fed to the air.

Cold feet is also beneficent in a small way. It helps the body to live within its income or, in other words, it reduces the expenditure of heat when the supply runs low.

Other investigators have proved that these changes in the temperature of different parts of the skin produce such internal changes in the distribution of the blood as cause swollen turbinates, stopped up nose, snoring, coughs and congestion of the lungs. Still others have related them to infections. One practical lesson to get out of all this is that keeping well clothed and wrapped in very cold weather is one way of avoiding such infections. It does not follow that such swaddling cannot be overdone.

Dr. Talbot's study proved that the skin of the face is more resistant to cold than is that of any other part of the body. That observation proves that the hardening process is a good measure of protection against colds and other infections. Taking cold water and cold air baths and dressing lightly are valuable training procedures in building up body resistance. The place of the wrapping and covering procedure is to meet temporary conditions to care for exposures that the skin has not been trained to overcome.

15 COUNTRIES NOW OFF GOLD STANDARD

Number of Other Nations Are Attemptnig to Reach Decision.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

London, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—The departure of Japan from the gold standard and the placing of an embargo on gold exports are the latest developments in the world muddle centering around the yellow metal.

Fifteen nations have now forsaken the gold monetary system temporarily and a number of others are trying to reach a decision. England is not hurrying to stabilize the humble pound and states it would be fatal to do so too soon and at too high a figure.

It is unlikely that Great Britain will attempt stabilization until something is done about war debts and reparations, which Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain considers to be at the base of most international financial troubles.

The devalued pound has given the British another grip on their old markets, particularly in the Far East. Japan had been capturing these in great strides and Great Britain is reluctant to relinquish her advantage. Japan had the advantage as a purchaser under the gold standard but the outflow of gold to America was seen by leaders of the Seiyukai party to be endangering her currency system.

Currencies Disarranged.

As long as Great Britain is off the gold basis, currencies are disarranged in other countries linked to the pound by commercial interdependence or political bands. India has seen an all-around improvement in commodity prices since Great Britain suspended the standard. India is not a silver country, technically, but silver is her chief source of wealth. Great Britain's departure from gold discouraged imports of gold nations to India and stimulated exports.

Japanese imports are more costly and Japanese mills are finding it more difficult to compete with Indian mills. Japan is not buying much Indian cotton because the American brand is cheaper. Commercial opinion favors bringing American silver producers in touch with the British, with a view to controlling production and sales for the purpose of improving the price.

China is not pleased that more countries are abandoning the gold basis. Bankers believe that such action will not help China's depreciated silver or her industry. China's silver stocks are held insufficient to finance the steadily increasing commerce, and if additional nations desert gold it is feared the silver outflow to them will result in stringency.

Losses Were Feared.

Scandinavian countries went off the gold standard chiefly because of close commercial connections with England, which made it necessary that their currencies follow the pound sterling, lest they take heavy losses.

Holland and Belgium cling to the gold standard, despite difficulties owing to conditions in Great Britain. Spain theoretically is on a fiduciary silver standard, but actually its credit situation is similar to that of England.

Neither Austria, Hungary, Czechoslovakia nor the Balkan countries have officially indicated any possible departure from the gold standard.

Austria and Hungary, whose currencies may be said to be based on "paper gold," have vigorously repudiated suggestions for a departure from gold. On the other hand, dollars have been bootlegged in Vienna for as high as 11 shillings (about $1.50 at the current rate of exchange) to the dollar. There has been similar illegal trading in Hungary.

Roumania now bases its exports on the French frac. Bulgaria has been pinched, but has avoided a currency crisis. Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia both have had the advantage of French support, while Albania money is regarded as being "as sound as the lira," for it has an Italian foundation.

a strong Minseito party majority. It is considered in political circles, outside the Seiyukai party, that his government will be short-lived despite its inflationist policies to heal the nation's wounds.

Among his plans to win popular favor is the appointment of a commission to study China, particularly Manchuria, and to make a number of recommendations to improve living conditions. He also is scheming to meet budget deficits by bond issues rather than by increasing taxes.

The premier will act as foreign minister until the return from Paris of Ambassador Kenkichi Yoshizawa, who will get the post. Jotaro Yamanoto, former president of the South Manchurian Railway, has been appointed minister without portfolio, setting a precedent in Japan.

Of Vital Interest to U. S.

New York, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Japan's lapse from a free gold standard, as confidently expected in financial markets, is of vital interest to the American cotton and silk trades.

Japan has long been one of the important consumers of American cotton and in turn has sold to America virtually all of its raw silk.

Bankers pointed out that so far as banking and securities are concerned the effect would be slight. American banks have negligible balances in Japanese currency. Japanese bonds held in this country amount to $303,800,000, and are payable in gold dollars whether Japan is on a gold standard or not. In fact, most of them were floated in this country before Japan reestablished the gold standard in January, 1930.

(Associated Press.)

While official comment on the action of Japan in suspending the gold standard and reimposing the gold embargo was withheld, officials here believe the action has been discounted. It had been expected.

4,000 TOYS READIED BY GIRL RESERVES

Are to Be Displayed Sunday at Y. W. C. A. Building; Play to Be Given.

More than 4,000 of the 6,000 toys requested of the Girl Reserves have been prepared and will be displayed next Sunday in the Y. W. C. A. Building at Seventeenth and K streets northwest. The other 2,000, which have not yet been turned over to Reserves, will be needed shortly to supply requests for Christmas presents for more unfortunate children.

Miss Elsa Peterson, chairman of the Girl Reserves, is in charge of painting and repairing of used toys given to the organization. Fire Engine Co. No. 1, the Boy Scouts and the Junior League also are working with the girls' group to renovate and deliver the playthings. Requests for toys must be made to the Council of Social Agencies, who refer them to the Reserves.

A Christmas play, "Why the Chimes Rang," will be given by the Reserves next Sunday in Barker Hall at 4 o'clock, as a part of the holiday ceremonial. It will be under direction of Miss Mary M. Burnett and Mrs. Alice Sigworth Morse. The public is invited to see the repaired and repainted toys and attend the ceremonial. A plea was issued for more toys, books and games to make up the remaining 2,000 which have been requested.

If the donor can not deliver them they will be called for.

OLD ST. NICK THANKS POST FOR ITS TOY FUND EFFORTS

in others he will "give twice who gives quickly."

The motto of the Toy Fund, "Every child a Merry Christmas through its own parents," has proven a very popular one. Many of the donors in sending their gifts have stated that they feel that this plan is not only novel but right because it will bring cheer into the whole household of the children aided in this way.

This year more than ever before families need help. The relief agencies of the city report that they are swamped with appeals for help, for food, clothing and to pay rent. Of course, of the funds they have on hand they can not take money to buy toys when people are practically starving in the city.

Disappointed Parents.

Many of these families—and they are worthy ones, too, brought to this pass through no fault of their own, just victims of the world-wide depression—previously had reserve funds of their own with which to purchase toys and candy for their little ones. This year stern necessity makes it imperative that this money if it is on hand go for actual living expenses. But no mother's heart or that of a father either will be content unless there is a chance to bring some Christmas joy into the lives of their children. That is the last crushing blow to them.

To put in their hands the funds with which to make a simple Merry Christmas for their children is to bring them new hope and life. For it does not take much to make the heart of a child happy. Just a handful of dimes can work miracles in this direction.

No one likes to think of boys and girls being unhappy during the holiday season and it was for that reason that The Post toy fund was created. Each child will receive some, at least, of the things for which he has been longing and will get them through fathers and mothers rather than through packages from strangers.

No contribution is too small and those who would like to help are asked to mail or bring their donations to The Washington Post for its Toy Fund. The bigger the fund the more children will be made happy, and there are plenty of youngsters in Washington facing a cheerless Christmas unless the residents of this national Capital "come through."

Appeals Being Received.

Appeals from individual parents and children for a share in The Post Toy Fund continue to pour in. All these individual cases will be cared for through the Council of Social Agencies, a clearing house for such work.

Miss Geraldine Frost, the Santa Claus Lady of The Post Toy Fund, got this childish scrawl yesterday:

"Dear Santa Claus Lady," it read. "I am writing you a letter if you will please tell dear Santa Claus not to forget my little sister and me. My father has been out of work for a year, and I would like some playthings.

"I can't go to school because I don't have anything to eat always.

"Dear Santa Claus Lady, my baby sister wants a few playthings. I never had many playthings myself and I am 7 years old and my little sister is 7 months old. Please do not forget us. I would like to have a doll. I never had a nice doll.

Good luck to you, dear Santa Claus, and hoping to see you.

From a little girl and her baby sister.

Children Have Faith.

The children of Washington have faith in The Post toy fund. For some of them in their letters put down exactly what they want. A little girl asks on a postal card for a doll carriage and for her two little sisters a breakfast set, table and chairs and a rocking chair. Not so much to desire, after all, but how a child can long for a thing! Your nickels, dimes, quarters and dollars can make this dream come true.

Vick Plan Helps Mothers Solve Problem of Colds

Mothers Adopt Plan By the Makers of Vicks VapoRub for Better "Control-of-Colds" in the Home.

Made Possible By New Product Based On New Idea for Preventing Colds — Reduces the Family's "Colds-Tax," in Money, Loss of Time and Health.

Every mother is taxed with the problem of colds—especially the frequent colds of children. And the family budget is taxed by their costs—in money, lost time and health. It is good news indeed, then, that the makers of Vicks VapoRub have perfected a Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" in the home. The Plan means fewer, less severe colds—and real reduction of the burdensome family "Colds-Tax."

Trial Offer to Vick Users

The Vick Plan is introduced along with the new Vicks Nose and Throat Drops, based on a new idea for "preventing" colds—companion product to Vicks VapoRub, the modern, external way of "treating" colds. Get a bottle of the new preparation and use it with VapoRub as directed below. Unless you are delighted with results, your druggist is authorized to refund your money.

Here, briefly, is the Vic Plan for better "Control-of-Colds":

1.—Before a Cold Starts

When children come in sniffling and sneezing, apply a few Vicks Drops up each nostril. Use the Drops yourself at that first scratchy, sneezy irritation of the nose or upper throat—Nature's warning that you are "catching cold." If you or the children catch cold easily, use the Drops after exposure to any condition you know is apt to be followed by a cold—dry, over-heated rooms—indoor crowds—sudden changes, wet or cold—dust and smoke—etc., etc.—and there is the slightest stuffiness. Used in time, many colds can be avoided.

2.—After a Cold Starts

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub. Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave bed-clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled all night long. During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Drops as needed for ease and comfort. This gives you full 24-hour treatment—and without the risks of constant internal "dosing," so often upsetting to digestion, especially the delicate digestions of children.

HELP AMERICA FIRST.

A week has gone by and the Senate is not yet organized. The House is capable of doing business, but it will not now be in a hurry to dispose of the moratorium resolution, in spite of the urgent need of legislation to mend the domestic situation. The Senate has squandered valuable time in a squabble over the election of a president pro tempore, while both houses have been alarmed by the President's recommendation that machinery be set up to pave the way for further downward revision of debts owed to the United States. The moratorium proposition will now be subjected to hostile scrutiny, and impending revelations concerning loans to foreign governments and corporations may lead to long debate.

Every day devoted to discussion of the war debts and foreign loans will be a day's postponement of relief to citizens who are in dire distress. If anything is of paramount importance it is legislation that will lift the curse of adversity from the people of this country. A plan of action has been formulated. It is a comprehensive plan, well calculated to restore confidence and start the march to prosperity. Congress can not save the world, no matter how much talk is expended; but it can help to lift the United States out of the depression, and by so doing it can help the world. The most friendly act that can be performed in behalf of the world is to expedite the recovery of the richest and most powerful nation in the world. If it is not helped, no action in behalf of the rest of the world will be worth while.

The Senate, like the House, is capable of doing many things at once, and doing them all well; but it can not do anything until it is organized. The deadlock over Senator Moses should be ended forthwith. The public necessity calls for suspension of personal and political grouches in the Senate. If no other way can be found to break the deadlock, a few regular Republicans should throw their Jonah to the whale and give the Senate to the Democrats.

WORK FOR PRISONERS.

Two years ago Congress passed the Hawes-Cooper act which enables States to protect themselves against unfair dumping of prison-made goods. Since that time there has been an effort in many of the States to make prison goods conform to higher economic standards. Progress in this direction, however, has been impeded in a number of cases by fear of both industry and labor that adequate prison employment would retard private enterprise. A national advisory committee on institutions has, therefore, been organized to assist prison authorities in the reorganization and development of prison industries.

George Gordon Battle, president of the parent organization, points out that labor, manufacturers and women's clubs have pledged assistance to the movement and are substantially represented on the committee. Hugh Frayne, of the American Federation of Labor; E. J. Volz, president of the Photo-Engraver's Union; Noel Sargent, of the National Association of Manufacturers, and Julia K. Jafray, of the correction division of the Federation of Women's Clubs, are a few of the ten members. The organized industrial forces which fought the unfair competition of prison labor are in agreement with the general principles of the committee's plans.

Each State will determine its own program for employing its prisoners and distributing the goods they produce. Adequate plans worked out by local officials and then approved by such a committee will do much toward assuring the support of local political agencies. It is hoped that this method will relieve the prison organization of the continual influence of political pressure and allow the forces of reconstruction to operate without undue friction and delay. The committee on institutional industries stands ready to receive plans tentatively worked out by State officials or organizations for developing adequate systems of employment in all prisons and institutions of correction. The work of reorganization must be finished by January, 1934, under provisions of the Hawes-Cooper act.

CHAIRMAN NORTON.

Residents of Washington are well pleased with the appointment of Mrs. Mary Norton, of New Jersey, to be chairman of the House committee on the District of Columbia. For the first time, a woman becomes chairman of a committee of Congress, and it is fitting that the committee should be one having charge of District affairs. It is a task for a good housekeeper, in which a warm heart and common sense should intervene to mitigate the rigor of the law. With Senator Capper as chairman of the Senate committee and Mrs. Norton as chairman of the House committee, the people of the District feel that painstaking personal interest will be applied to their affairs, and that legislation will be based upon a sympathetic understanding of local conditions and necessities.

In her influential place Mrs. Norton can obtain accurate information upon which to ascertain the just relative responsibilities of the Federal Government and local taxpayers in financing the District government. It is impossible to fix exactly to a dollar the proportions which should be assumed by the Government and the taxpayers. The tendency in the House has been to shift to taxpayers the major part of the burden, while the Senate has been disposed to recognize the obligation of Congress to provide a proper share of the cost of maintaining the seat of Government. But while it would be desirable to know to the dollar what the proportionate contributions should be, it is not necessary. Congress can make a rough and ready rule which would be reasonably fair to all.

What is necessary, however, is that the Federal contribution shall be sufficient, when added to local tax collections, to meet the demands of a growing city—a city distinct from all others, peculiar in its nature and requirements, created and set apart to be the seat of Government. It was designed to be a city in which Congress, the Executive and the judiciary should be safe from popular tumult. It was built in a place remote from large populations, and exclusive jurisdiction over it was lodged in Congress. It is now a magnificent Capital, with buildings and other property worth hundreds of millions of dollars owned by the Government and exempt from taxation. In order to serve the needs of the Government personnel there are streets, sewers, lights, parks, schools and other accessories. As a Capital worthy of the United States the city is laid out on a magnificent scale, immensely more ample and expensive than would be required for a city of the same population not set apart as the seat of government.

The proposal that the Federal Government should contribute $6,000,000 toward the cost of maintaining its own Capital, and that local taxpayers should be forced to contribute about six times as much, is the latest recommendation to the House, made by the Mapes committee. If this committee had recommended that the Federal Government be exempted from paying anything at all for its Capital the report would have been no more unjust. The recommendation is so grotesquely out of line with common sense that it is charitable to assume that the committee did not study the situation at all, but merely drew an arbitrary figure out of its inner consciousness.

We don't know whether Chairman Norton approves of this report or not; but we know that she is sincere, industrious and very able. Therefore, even if she should be misled by the Mapes committee, she will not be long misled, but in the end will favor a just allocation of the burden of financing the government of the District of Columbia.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

Supervision of the welfare and efficiency of Uncle Sam's great family of civil service employes is one of the major tasks of administration in Washington with which the average citizen does not frequently come in contact. The personnel of the executive service now numbers 616,837, of which 71,693 are in Washington. By far the greatest number of employes are required for the Postoffice service, their ranks numbering nearly half of the total.

The annual report of Thomas E. Campbell, president of the Civil Service Commission, makes various recommendations for the welfare and improvement of the service, the first being the combination into one administrative body of all Federal agencies which have to do with personnel. Another change desired is the allocation of funds of the several departments so as to permit concentration of personnel in those activities where work is temporarily increased, transferring help from departments where work has correspondingly decreased. This mobility would relieve overworked offices without extra expenditure.

An important advance in the service was secured through the executive order last April, creating the Council of Personnel Administration. The council already has made the Federal civil service more attractive to men and women seeking careers in Government work. Personal activities have been coordinated in the interest of both the employes and the Government.

A THIRD SEACOAST.

A meeting in Chicago of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater Association to further the projected international waterway, attended by a number of governors of Midwest and Western States and representatives of agricultural and other export shipping interests, has served to stimulate interest anew in this great project. Treaty negotiations between the United States and Canada, covering all the points at issue such as division of construction work, lock systems and power development, are now in the final stages. It is anticipated that the complete draft may be ready so that it may go before Congress early next year.

The completion of a waterway from the Atlantic, through the entire chain of the Great Lakes, that will enable ocean-going steamers to reach the heart of the United States and Canada, will mark a most important advance in transportation facilities for exports and for shipments to the eastern seaboard. For the Central and Western States it will be equivalent to bringing mid-continental producers from 1,000 to 1,500 miles closer to ocean transportation. Estimates of saving on shipments of American and Canadian wheat and other agricultural products run as high as 10 cents a bushel.

Plans for the completion of this waterway do not contemplate any international pooling of funds for its construction, but rather a division of the work and expense upon an equitable basis. The United States in all probability will undertake the building of the locks required to afford passage through some 40 miles of rapids in the St. Lawrence. This feature of the work also will include the great power plants.

The United States will be compelled to deepen and broaden connections between the lakes. Canada has already expended more than $100,000,000 upon canal work that will become a part of the international system. Altogether the project is one that will entail a total outlay of $500,000,000. It will rival the Panama Canal in cost and its benefits will be felt by interior points of the United States that have suffered from the competitive handicaps of the Panama route.

TURKEY CALLS GOLD HOME.

In order to maintain the standard of her money and protect her balance of trade, Turkey has taken drastic measures. She called home $3,000,000 deposited in New York and then promulgated an almost prohibitive tariff.

Profiting by a lesson of two years ago, Turkey made no advance announcement of the duty revision. On the last occasion the council of ministers gave several weeks' notice before its ruling went into effect. Merchants immediately imported large quantities of foreign merchandise, and when the increased rates were established importations dropped to almost nothing. It was months before the expected increase in revenue was realized by the government.

This time the ministers formulated the decree in secrecy and suddenly announced it to be in effect. Startling and varied results ensued. Some merchants holding large stocks of foreign goods had an opportunity to sell long-standing supplies, while others who depended on imports for their entire trade were faced with heavy losses and even bankruptcy. Periods of transition inevitably cause hardships to some, but when they come like a bolt of lightning, the victims are more numerous. These individuals find little consolation in the knowledge that the country as a whole will benefit.

The arrival of the gold from New York created an impression of security in the country. In European circles the journey of the gold bars caused some amusement. The bullion went safely from New York to Cherbourg, but there the Wagons-lits Co. refused to transport it to Istanbul, so the transport agents were compelled to use ordinary freight trains. The car containing the gold was attached to nine different trains and took seven days for its trip. In the Balkans railroad companies, fearing brigands, refused to allow the car to travel except by daylight.

The two men in charge of the gold were relieved when, at last, they reached their destination, but when they endeavored to deliver the gold, the railway company refused to allow it to be removed on the grounds that part of the freight had not been paid. After numerous telegrams to Paris the deadlock continued for two days. In the end the bank paid the few hundred dollars due, rather than run any further risk. The gold is now safely deposited in the vaults of the national bank.

OUR LESSENING ALIENS

From the Atlanta Constitution.

For the first time in history, the number of aliens departing from the United States is now greater than those arriving, a condition which is accounted for by the National Industrial Conference Board as resulting not only from congressional enactments of the past few years but from the drastic enforcement of administrative measures.

The effect the latter are having in keeping out undesirable aliens is well illustrated in the decrease of Mexican immigration. While Mexico, Canada and other countries of the Western hemisphere are largely exempted from the workings of the national origins quota law, the more rigid application of regulations as to physical and mental defects and literacy caused Mexican immigration to drop from 1,000 a month in 1929 to a negligible number by the latter part of last year.

The current bulletin of the industrial conference board shows that the switch in the figures regarding the arrival and departure of aliens through our ports is caused not by a diminishing of the outgoing stream, which continues in practically the same volume, but in the swift descent in the number of those being admitted into the country.

During the period of unrestricted immigration, our population was swelled during some years by the addition of more than a million aliens. From 1925 to 1928 the net immigration was between 200,000 and 300,000 each year, having reached a low-water mark of 191,000 for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1930. For the year ending last June the figures dropped below 100,000 for the first time in many years, 97,000 aliens having come to our shores and 61,000 departing.

During the last half of the fiscal year represented by these figures, the departures began to outnumber the arrivals in a steadily increasing ratio. As a result immigration figures to October 1 showed a net decrease in our foreign population for the first nine months of this year of 22,769.

Had not the American Government put an end to the open-door policy which was, as late as 1921, adding a half million of ignorant members of the lower classes of the nations of Europe, it is not difficult to realize what the effect on labor in the United States would have been, especially during the past two years of depression and resultant unemployment.

Our present quota laws are far from being perfect, especially in that they bar many aliens of a type we would like to have and continue to admit many undesirables, but there is ground for general gratification that under their operation a halt has been called to our annual increase in alien population.

WHAT MAKES THE GAME.

"I fumbled," said the sad-eyed lad,
"And lost the golden chance I had!"
"That's quite all right," his coach replied,
"I understand how hard you tried.
Forget it now! Go back and fight
With all your strength and all your might.

"Take hold of this consoling thought:
If every ball that's thrown were caught;
If no one faltered; no one fell;
If every play we tried went well;
If gain with every venture came,
There would be nothing to the game.

"What makes the game? Not perfect play,
But golden chances thrown away!
The fumbled ball; the slight mistake
Which men however skillful make,
The faulty judgment and the will
To wait and work for victory still.

"And so with life! If all were plain;
If men perfection could attain,
If neither doubt nor loss nor fear
Should ever test our courage here;
If we knew all, and all could see,
Then deadly dull this life would be."

You Can't Cheer a Sick Man by Talking About the Death of Others.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

AMERICANS, as Bryce said, are a docile people. They eat what is set before them and accept it as their due, making little complaint.

Wherefore a grave responsibility rests on those who provide the fare.

The mental fare of the average American is provided by newspapers. They supply him the greater part of his information, most of his opinions, and a large portion of his prejudices and ideals.

It is quite literally true that a man becomes what he reads. If he reads wisdom, he becomes wise; if he reads cheerful things, he becomes cheerful; if he reads depressing and alarming things, he becomes depressed and alarmed.

And since a man's physical condition is largely determined by his mental state and his conduct is in some measure determined by his physical condition, it is not too much to say that his life is shaped by the printed fare that is placed before him morning and evening.

A hypnotist controls the mind of one person. A newspaper, by means more subtle and often without intention, influences the mood, the opinions, the conduct and the destiny of thousands.

Tonight I was tired and depressed. Whether I should contrive a silver lining for the clouds or resign myself to the depths of gloom depended in large measure on the contents of the newspapers.

And these are the headlines that greeted me on the first page: Ten thugs hold up big party; Three more gang men dead; Wrecks kill ten; Two hurt in wreck; Bandits line up victims and shoot; Thieves take governor's car; Family of five killed by gas; Suicides over Niagara Falls; Three members of family die; Boy killed as auto hits bike; Woman indicted in death of child.

A fare to sicken the soul! The effect was like that of watching a man club a fallen horse—like watching a mob finish a screaming victim—like discovering the treachery of a trusted friend. It destroyed faith and hope and left only bleak despair.

A nation continuously fed on such headlines must inevitably do one of two things. It must lose heart and hope or it must cultivate a cynical and callous indifference.

Do you know why Will Rogers is so universally liked? It isn't because he is a humorist, for in print he seldom is funny. It is because he is clean and cheerful. He makes people feel better. He leaves a good taste in the mouth.

All normal people dodge a gossip whose talk is always of nastiness and evil.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

A National Task.

Christian Science Monitor.

When a President of the United States informs the Congress on the state of the Union, he seldom produces fodder for the tabloids. His disclosures are not likely to be startling for all that his message is wrapped in almost as much secrecy as a British budget. Mr. Hoover's statement to the Seventy-second Congress is not exciting. It will disappoint all the panacea planners and those who expected the President with one stroke to set the world straight again.

It deals largely with financial problems and follows in the main along expected lines. Mr. Hoover recommends several plans already outlined by him for melting frozen credit and reawakening business. All of them merit close consideration by Congress.

Warning to Republicans.

Portland Press Herald.

This is not a Republican year as the by-elections all show. All these elections should convince Republicans everywhere that the campaign of 1932 can only be won by the selection of the strongest candidates the party can put forward. Of course, conditions may change in our own State between now and next September. But when all Republican strongholds are showing a decided drift toward the Democratic party it should carry conviction to Republican leaders everywhere that great care should be exercised in selecting candidates for office and in strengthening the organization so that it may be in a condition to make a vigorous fight when the campaign opens.

Dawes Comes Through.

Atlanta Constitution.

Proof of the diplomatic ability and wisdom of Ambassador Dawes is to be found in the remarkable change in the deliberations and decisions of the League of Nations, in the consideration of the Manchurian controversy, since the American representative at the Court of St. James showed up on the scene.

While not participating in the sessions of the league, Ambassador Dawes has been busily engaged in conferences with groups of its members, the results of which have been a marked clarifying of the situation and steady progress toward the reaching of a basis upon which Japan and China could get together to thrash out their troubles.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Great Britain Gets Trade of Silver Countries Because She Has Suspended Gold Standard, Says Advocate of Silver Stabilization.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Not because she wanted to but because she had to, proud old England slipped off the gold standard, and now, to her surprise, she is enjoying an infant boom in her industries. Her tradesmen find they can now do business with silver countries like China, India and Mexico, not to mention Afghanistan, Abyssinia, Egypt and the South and Central American republics. Some day our American captains of industry will wake up and find they overlooked a bet when they refused to give a kind look to the stabilization of silver.

It wasn't the debacle in the stock market of 1929 that caused the world depression. The truth of the matter is we are deflating the hot air and water in our securities. We are narrowing things down to the gold standard.

After 6,000 years of usage of gold and silver, side by side, both of them commodities, the patricians seeking the gold for money, the plebeians the silver, the gold men finally, after 50 or more years of effort, succeeded in demonetizing silver. Just about three years ago India was placed on the gold standard and great hoards of silver were thrown on the market, causing silver to tumble from 64 cents an ounce to 25. Mexican dollars, which ruled as a medium of exchange in China for 20 years or more at two Mexs for one gold dollar, soon became four or more Mexs for one gold dollar. This reduced the purchasing power of the masses who put their savings into silver coin or ornaments.

But strange to say, this resulted in business activity in such cities as Shanghai. Cheap silver dollars are building textile, cigarette and probably truck and automobile factories. But we sell our autos on a gold basis to foreign countries, and it takes a lot of silver dollars to buy them.

For instance, the water boy of Mexico who secretly hides his silver savings in a water jar sunken in the dirt floor of his hovel now finds he can not buy the longed-for Ford or Chevrolet because he is as poor as when he began to save. Likewise, the jinrickasha coolie of China meets the same fate. So also the damsel in India who would cash in silver ornaments for a beautiful piece of American dress goods finds it ever receding from her grasp.

But the college theorists on economics who preached the purchase of stocks in 1929 at ridiculous prices on account of their equities say the tariff deprives the foreigner of the wherewithal to buy our machines. Like the famous mouse-trap factory hid in the forest, the world will beat a track to our doors to buy our machines if they are perfect, tariff or no tariff.

JEREMIAH JOHNSON.

Motorist Suggests That Transcontinental Speedway Be Constructed by Mileage Tax on Automobiles.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was much interested in your editorial of December 9 on "Motoring Costs," as I have kept a similar account of expenses incurred in operating my automobile since 1927.

While I hesitate to question the data of the American Road Builders Association, my experience shows that their costs appear very high; but, of course, it must be kept in mind that any comparison must be reduced to similar operating routine before actual comparisons can be made.

With my car I attained in 7½ months approximately the same mileage (11,158) as the "average" automobile travels in a year.

Adjusting for garage and auto tax and bringing the gasoline and oil costs up to that shown for the "average" automobile I find that the "average" automobile costs 5.99 cents a mile to operate and mine costs 4.05 cents per mile. This shows that my automobile costs 32 per cent less than the "average."

There is no doubt that good roads decrease the operating cost of automobiles, and I consider the suggestion made some time ago to build a 500-foot speedway across the continent with a tax imposed upon automobiles one of the most constructive suggestions for the advance of good motoring that has been made in the history of automobiling.

I think, however, the estimated "average" cost is too high, for I find my car costing exactly the same as railroad fare if I am driving alone. When transporting my family of four the cost is just one-quarter of traveling by train. WM. H. PORTER,
Lieutenant Commander U. S. N.

Says Mr. Myers' Criticism of the Federal Trade Commission Is Tardy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We read with amusement in this morning's New York papers a statement quoting Mr. Abraham F. Myers, of Washington, formerly a member of the Federal Trade Commission, that said commission was a "colassal failure" and "that in the 17 years of its existence it has not enunciated a single principle of law, economics or ethics that is available to industry or its advisors in the solution of their problems today."

It appears somewhat late in the season to make such charges in view of the fact that Mr. Meyers, while serving on the commission, was one of its loudest and most vociferous panegyrists and at various times submitted to the House appropriations committee and to Chairman Will Wood long statements setting forth the miraculous feats of the commission.

DIAL FLASHES

FOLLOWING the successful tests in the Senate, Senator Dill will introduce his resolution today for authority to have important Senate debates and speeches broadcast. The senator is quoted as saying if the Senate goes on the air, he doubts if they ever propose to broadcast all the Senate debate. He knows good and well they do not.

In the first place there is too much commercial time sold to permit chains handling extended debates during desirable hours, and in the second there are too many hot shots exchanged in debate which the senators would never permit their constitutents to hear.

Things would get back home which might prove embarrassing and if such debate went out on the radio waves it would necessarily be heard exactly as it takes place and objectionable remarks could not be kept from the constituents by convenient deletion, as is done in the Congressional Record.

WITH the rest of the world from which to choose, those in charge of the Lucky Strike dance hour have selected a Washington orchestra to appear on one of their most important programs of the year. On Christmas eve, Herb Gordon, who conducts the Wardman Park Orchestra, will divide honors on the Lucky Strike program with orchestras directed by Seymour Simons, of Detroit, and Emerson Gill, of Cleveland.

Following its now established policy of choosing what it considers the best from everywhere, the Lucky Strike schedule for December follows:

Saturday, December 12, Earl Burnett, Los Angeles; Tuesday, December 15, Jack Hylton, London, England, and Jack Pettis, New York; Thursday, December 17, Coon Sanders; Saturday, December 19, Jack Denny, Montreal; Tuesday, December 22, Ted Weems, Chicago; Thursday, December 24, Seymour Simons, Detroit; Emerson Gill, Cleveland, and Herb Gordon, Washington; Saturday, December 26, Jimmy Grier, Los Angeles; Tuesday, December 29, Cab Calloway, and Thursday, December 31, Jack Hylton, Paris, France; Jack Denny, Montreal, and Al Katz, New York.

MANY people think a successful newspaper man can do almost anything, but usually the thing he does best—and very often the only thing he is fitted for—is newspaper work.

The result is that many a good newsaper man has proved to be a second-rate business executive and has utterly failed to make good in a new field. This has proved especially true in the cases of seasoned men—those in higher positions who have been with a paper for many years.

A notable exception is Edward Klauber, formerly news editor of the New York Times. Mr. Klauber, or "Ed," as they used to call him on the Times, became an important factor at Columbia from the day he walked into the office. Starting about a year ago as vice president and assistant to the president, Mr. Paley has been so well satisfied with Klauber's work that he has now advanced him to be first vice president.

A successful accomplishment of Mr. Klauber has been to be a buffer between Mr. Paley and those desiring to take up his time needlessly. In this Klauber has been absolute and Paley has backed him up to the limit, with the result that it now seems to be well established that any one who expects to see Paley must see "Ed" Klauber first.

GENE BUCK, here for the Gridiron dinner, brought word from New York that the condition of J. C. Rosenthal, general manager of the American Society of Composers, continues critical. Rosenthal was in the mountains for a good rest and later returned to work but has now had a serious relapse.

Mr. Buck, who is president of the society, is now carrying on Rosenthal's work as well as his own.

If there is another great war, the public will fly with the observers' planes above "no-man's land" and watch an actual barrage laid down, through the medium of sight and sound broadcasting, Joseph D. R. Freed believes.

"The coronation of the next King of England (perhaps the Prince of Wales) will be seen," Mr. Freed prophesies. "Travel agencies will take you around the world. There will be nothing on earth which will remain hidden from the all-seeing and all-hearing ear of the broadcasting of tomorrow.

"There are a few great problems to be overcome," Mr. Freed admitted. However, he contended: "A fundamental basis for television has been established."

WHEN Cheerio decided to present a condensed version of the late George Beban's famous vaudeville sketch, "The Sign of the Rose," he found that the piece had undergone so many revisions that he was unable to locate the exact Beban version. First a monologue, the sketch became a four-act play, and finally a moving picture.

Russell Gilbert, Cheerio's assistant, found in the New York telephone directory only one Beban—strangely enough, a George Beban. He called the number.

"Are you, by any chance, related to the late George Beban, the actor?" he asked the woman who answered.

"I am his sister," she replied.

And so Cheerio's version of "The Sign of the Rose" this morning (WRC, at 8:30) will be taken from the original script, as prepared by George Beban himself.

THE first coast-to-coast Mobiloil concert will be inaugurated Wednesday night at 9:30. • • • Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, will speak during the National Student Federation program, 4:30 o'clock, this afternoon, WMAL. • • • Special radio adaptations of the work of master dramatists and composers will be presented during an occasional series of half-hour lyric dramas, WRC, 10 p. m., Wednesday. • • • The Tuesday night Goodyear program will be heard each Wednesday hereafter on a larger network, 8:30 p. m. • • • "Real Folks," a long-time WJZ feature, will go commercial over CBS in January. • • • When the March of Time reenacted the opening of Congress, the part of William Tyler Page, clerk of the House of Representatives, was taken by his friend, Julian Noa. The actor recently sat in the gallery and watched Page perform in his office. • • • Roland Farley, American composer, will be guest artist on the Musical Americana program tomorrow, WMAL, 3:30 p. m. • • • "Is college football overemphasized?" is the question which will be discussed by Dr. Howard Savage in an interview Wednesday night, WRC, at 10. • • • The Quarles Trio of three sisters make their first Eastern air appearance in the National Music League series, WRC, today, 4 p. m. The musicians are natives of Denver, Colo.

A NEW ENGLANDER who recently visited the New York broadcasting studios told officials he had made the trip for the sole purpose of seeing a broadcast. His train fare was $17.20, he said, more than he had ever paid for a ticket to any ether show.

Jane Interprets the Mode

This lovely formal dinner gown is of multicolored brocaded velvet with a graceful scarf of the same material. (Seen in a New York shop.)

New York, Dec. 13.

AND the penalty for that, my deah fashion-ignorant woman, is 30 days in jail, reading fashion news! And what's that? That is the wearing of a tuck-in blouse!

Really, you would think it was a sin or a disgrace or something, this wearing of a tuck-in blouse, for it just isn't being done by any one. All of a sudden all the little tuck-ins must have just taken a deep breath and blown themselves away, right out of today's picture. And quickly and quietly, without any noise or fuss, the blouses with hip yokes, or peplums, or vestee closing came in and took their places!

Seriously, though, I'm glad to see the longer blouses with us again. They may be treated with a formality and variety that tuck-ins never attained, and they are much more becoming to most women. These blouses, in jersey, or dark silk crepes, worn with a wool skirt in the same color, or, just as popularly, with a contrasting skirt, form complete frocks—and just think of the variety one may attain with a few of these blouses and a couple of skirts at very little cost. I'll describe a few of the blouses we saw on the avenue the other day so you may realize the infinite possibilities of blousedom.

The first was a jacket-type blouse of Spanish tile jersey, with metal buttons and a square metal belt buckle; then there was a beige peau d' ange blouse, with criss-cross tucking and waffle-smocking on the elbow-puffed sleeves; one of black velvet had a buttoned-over yoke, another of emerald green wool crepe fastened down the side with gay little tabs—which is all I've space to tell about today!

• • • •

Brocaded velvet, in lovely designs and colors, is ever so popular this season, and one of the best things I know for formal dinner frocks. The one I have sketched for you today is of tones of chartreuse, jade and dark green, and the material and color are so lovely that there isn't a bit of need for more trimming than the square jade belt buckle. The loose scarf collar may be adjusted in infinite ways.

• • • •

'N' when you yield to the charms of brocaded velvet, guard against elaborate trimming. The material is beautiful enough to stand alone.

• • • •

The neckline I illustrate, of heavy gold and sardonyx, is perfectly stunning with a plainish evening or dinner frock.

• • • •

Make your own Christmas tree ornaments—and have fun the while you save pennies for other things! Our idea is to make them of empty eggshells, covered with—well, better send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Post for the leaflet which tells you how to do it, and make many other attractive Christmas tree ornaments which can just be untied from the tree and become presents. As for the eggshells, pricking a hole in either end of an egg and blowing the contents out for the family omelet will guarantee you your eggshells, and you can have a dozen or so eggshells by the time your leaflet arrives, if you start today!

Culbertson on Contract

AVOIDING THE FINESSE.

THE course adopted by some Contract players of refusing to disturb the Opening bid, which has not been raised by the partner of the Opening bidder, is a losing course if the hand contains sufficient strength to justify an attempt to take the contract away from him and play it on the attack.

Partial scores are valuable, and even a game can sometimes be found hidden in the unrevealed honor strength and distribution of the partner. This is clearly shown in the hand discussed today.

Both sides vulnerable.

South—Dealer.

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
1NT(1)	Pass	Pass	2♡(2)
Pass	3♡(3)	Pass	4♡(4)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—South's hand certainly qualifies for an Opening bid of one notrump. The hand contains 3½ honor-tricks with the plus value of the heart Queen.

2—East correctly reads the honor distribution as showing considerable honor strength in the South hand, with West and North probably weak. If West has the balance of strength, they may well be able to make a partial score, while South might make one notrump if the bid were uncontested.

3—East struck oil. His partner's hand contains 2 honor-tricks and strong support for the heart bid. West reasons that if East was unwilling to permit South to play the hand at one notrump, his hand must be quite strong. His strength is sufficient to justify a Raise.

4—Assured that his partner's hand contains support for the trump suit and other tricks as well, East bids for game.

In the play South opened the Ace of diamonds and followed with the King. If North can win a trick, the return of the diamonds will assure South of a trump trick. This manner of playing his diamond honors showed no more in that suit. South then shifted to the Queen of spades, which East won with the King and immediately returned the suit, winning with the Ace in the Dummy.

Another spade was led from Dummy and trumped in the closed hand. East now laid down the Ace of hearts and followed with the Knave. South covered and West won with the King. A small heart was led from the Dummy, East winning and South was void of trumps.

East now led his last diamond and trumped with Dummy's last trump. South discarding a club. This confirmed East in his reading of the distribution. He now led the 7 of spades from Dummy, discarding on it the 10 of clubs. South, forced into the lead, was compelled to lead a club as East, through his accurate play, had eliminated all other suits from his hand.

East, through avoiding the marked losing finesse in clubs, had assured the success of his contract.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question: How are long-side-suit tricks counted in the Declarer's and in the Responding Hand?

Answer: All cards over three in the suit are counted as ½ each.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF December 14 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:40 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 9:30 p. m. to 10:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 11:15 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6:45 p. m.

The unforeseen forces will send forth vitalizing influences on December 14, and those who have been feeling "seedy" will be benefited. It will also be a day of inspiration for those who need to be in a proper mood for good work, such as writers, artists and musicians.

The child born on this December 14 will have a quiet and an unimpulsive nature, and will not have much initiative. It will be sociable and of a good disposition and will be easily influenced. If it be a boy, it will be fitted for agricultural pursuits and should never attempt sedentary work. If it be a girl a training for home duties would be more practical than a career.

You, if born on December 14, pride yourself on being frank and outspoken in your opinions, and the world is never in wonder as to on which side of the fence you are sitting. Your adherence to the strictest candor at all times and to all people does not promote your general popularity. There is another virtue called "tact," which it would be well for you to acquire; its use would help to oil the wheels of everyday intercourse, and its advantages outweigh any harm occasioned by its inherent insincerities.

You are too conservative and too much a follower of customs to be a pioneer in any field of work. You have definite ambitions, however, and the steadiness and practical ability to make your dreams realities. Once you have formed a plan of campaign you do not rest until you have carried it out, no matter at what expense of time or trouble. You have rather a maximum amount of faith in your own abilities and a minimum amount in that of others.

A WREATH FOR EVERY WINDOW

THINK what the effect would be, in these times of depression, if this were true! It would, indeed, be a case of "shout the glad tidings." We can not all have a Christmas tree, but surely we can have a wreath and a few sprigs of green. Somehow, Christmas would not be merry without them. Not until we hang our wreaths and arrange our holiday decorations do we really seem to enter into the Christmas spirit.

The kind of wreaths we select is merely a matter of taste. All Christmas greens are lovely.

We that are interested in conserving the natural beauty of the waysides know that we must leave the holly, ground pine and laurel to decorate the open places and use the more plentiful kinds of native greens, such as cedar, balsam, pine and spruce, and, to lend color to our wreaths and garlands, use periwinkle (myrtle), ivy, teazle seed pods, bitter sweet, rose pips and haws, cones, barberry and other berry-bearing branches.

The cedar wreaths, with their little bunches of dull brown cones peeping out from among the shadows, seem to bring us a special message from the woods. Their very fragrance is suggestive of the great outdoors. Small hemlock or spruce branches lend themselves well to wreath-making.

The beauty of the evergreen wreaths is always enhanced by a bow of scarlet ribbon. If you are decorating an empire wreath always place the bow about the base or widest portion. If perfectly circular, you may tie the bow at any place. Use a good quality ribbon for this purpose and be careful to choose a scarlet red—never a red with a tint of blue in it. I suggest a good quality of ribbon because on a Christmas wreath the quality always shows.

Your Ferns

Are they as beautiful as they were when you first brought them into the house this fall? Or are their fronds yellow and spindly?

Whether or not they need doctoring, you will find the advice given in a leaflet prepared for readers of this column very helpful in keeping your ferns thick and glossy. A self-addressed, stamped envelope will bring it to you. Write to JANE LESLIE KIFT, Care of The Washington Post.

Red immortelles make brilliant wreaths, but we can not forget that they are dried flowers, so we never enjoy them quite as we do those made from evergreen. Did you suggest that they are more durable? Well, I must grant that one point in their favor. And should they fade they can be easily made as bright as when you purchased them by merely dipping them in a pan of dye.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

EXPLODING UNIVERSE MIGHT BE EXPLAINED

Carnegie President Urges Placing of Telescope in the Antipodes.

(Associated Press.)

The skies of the Southern Hemisphere hold a possible explanation to the "exploding universe" observed by Einstein, Hubble, Jeans and De Sitter.

Therefore, establishment of a great 100-inch telescope in the Antipodes is urged in the annual report of Dr. John C. Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institution, of Washington.

"The last year," he says, "has shown continuing contribution by Mount Wilson Observatory to knowledge of the most remote realms of space at present attainable. The tremendous distances out to the most remote observed spiral nebulae as estimated by Dr. Edwin Hubble have focused attention on the dimensions of the universe. The now widely known shift of lines toward the red section of the spectrum, suggesting, from one point of view, a tremendous rate of movement of the outermost nebulae has raised the question whether the physical world may not be expanding so rapidly as to resemble explosive action.

Visits to the observatory by Dr. Einstein, Sir James Jeans and Dr. De Sitter and others are evidence of the importance these observations have in study of the most fundamental questions in astronomy and physics.

Widening of Research.

"The great contribution to understanding of structure and dimensions of the physical universe through researches at Mount Wilson and cooperating agencies has made more insistent the demand for information regarding the extremely important region of the heavens seen only from the Southern Hemisphere. The proposal that the institution extend to the Southern sky the type of work done at Mount Wilson has especial significance when it is realized that much of the most important material comprised in our understanding of the outer reaches of known space could not be secured by an instrument appreciably smaller than the 100-inch telescope.

"Completion of a picture of the heavens with special reference to more remote regions of the universe will therefore require in the Southern Hemisphere a telescope as powerful as the 100-inch telescope at Mount Wilson.

"In addition to actual location of the nebulae it would be possible to obtain information regarding nature of their movement on the same basis as studies of the apparent high rate of speed now in progress at Mount Wilson."

New Field of Interpretation.

Dr. Merriam reports also that measurement of the diameters of fixed stars, accomplished for the first time, have "opened a new field for interpretation of the stellar universe."

He tells of research into changes of climate which may some time build up a "body of knowledge of enormous importance for future guidance of human activities."

The Carnegie Institution's investigation into the nature of vibrations set up on the earth by artificial earthquakes gives data "of immediate value in checking against records of earthquake waves."

In its 30 years the aggregate receipts of the institution have been $77,156,269.15 and its aggregate expenditures $76,840,509.45.

HONOLULU RIOTING FOLLOWS ATTACK

hall. The kidnaping occurred in the other end of the city.

Police arrested three other defendants in the case to protect them from the sailors.

One civilian and one sailor were taken to hospitals after street fights.

Rear Admiral's View.

Honolulu, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Honolulu was branded as an unsafe place for wives of naval officers last week by Rear Admiral George T. Pettengill, commanding mine craft of the Fourteenth Naval District in maneuvers near Hilo. He said he had protested the condition to Admiral Richard H. Leigh, commander of the battle force, United States fleet.

Simultaneously Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, commandant of Pearl Harbor, declared that a "certain portion" of Honolulu's population refused to take cases of assault upon women seriously.

"Honolulu may expect cases of assault upon women unless the better element gets to work to stamp out this condition," he said.

The alleged assault upon the naval officer's wife, which precipitated the present situation, occurred September 12. Hearing of the case was declared a mistrial last week.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT ALMOST turned out to be an informal five-o'clock tea!

I mean, when that eminent young publicist, Mr. William C. Ewing, of the Warner forces, escorted me back to the dressing room after the second performance at the Earle Saturday afternoon, three charming young women from the National Park Seminary already were calling upon Sue Carol and Nick Stuart. It was, by that time, getting along toward five, so you see—

Sue Carol. Nick Stuart.

I have no idea why the idea collapsed. Maybe because there wasn't any tea! Certainly I wouldn't know about that!

The setting, however, was ideal for an interviewer's purposes. Seven in the room, instead of only three, the hour of the day and a community of interests set the stage perfectly for a fusillade of tea-table chatter, even if there was no tea. Thus, even had I been fortified with a list of intimate, personal questions longer than you have been in town—which, happily for all concerned, probably, I never am—there would have been no opportunity during the ensuing hour between shows to pop them.

The "three little maids from school are we" trio, I take it, were sorority sisters of Miss Carol's, or something of the kind, for whether you remember it or not, Miss Carol was a student at Forest Glen not so many years ago. Her recollection coincides with mine that it has been somewhere published that it was at Ferry Hall, the finishing school at Lake Forest, Ill., near her native Chicago, that she attended boarding school, but actually she is an alumna of National Park Seminary, where she was enrolled during the years, 1923, '24 and '25. Washington, therefore, is not the new experience to her that it is to her husband, Mr. Stuart, although appearing here as a stage star decidedly is.

But what I am deviously arriving at by all this circumlocution is that under no other circumstances would it be likely to become so immediately apparent to anyone in the least accustomed to the usages of good breeding and the observance of the social amenities that here is a charming young couple who at once must be recognized as "our kind of people."

SHUDDERS and cold chills pursue themselves about my quivering person as I contemplate the possibility of this being construed as a veiled implication of aloofness, haughtiness or "high hat" on the part of Miss Carol or Mr. Stuart, or both. That would be an unconscionable slander. They are, on the contrary, an utterly natural and unspoiled pair of youngsters, whose easy and graceful assumption of the role of hosts merely marks them as blessed with a little more poise, a little more background and a little more savoir faire than a majority of their associates in filmland who have preceded them to the local boards have revealed.

How wholly genuine they are may be judged, for example, from their complete emancipation from any delusions of grandeur as regards their individual or joint screen achievements. Asked point blank, with all of this column's usual subtlety and indirection, which of her films she deemed best, Miss Carol replied:

"Well, we might as well be honest about it, so, to tell you the truth, I do not think any of the films in which I have appeared have been especially good. Of the lot, 'Dancing Sweeties,' I dare say, would be my choice, although David Butler has a way of making all of the juveniles appearing in the films he directs have a wonderful time while at work on the picture."

"It is queer what different effects different directors have on their players." It is Nick Stuart, who has taken up the conversation at this point and is now speaking. "There are highly rated directors on the Coast who can explain a scene for two hours and then send their principals on the set with no more definite notion of what is really wanted than when they began. Then, on the other hand, there are those who can outline the action and the desired effect for no more than five minutes and send you on absolutely sure of what it is all about and what you are expected to do."

Both are of the opinion that not enough initiative is left to the actor and that many pictures are ruined because a director may feel that he can personally interpret every role in the play better than the principals who have been engaged for that purpose. And I dare say they were right—meaning Miss Carol and Mr. Stuart. I could even cite you instances, as a matter of fact!

THEIR present week at the Earle is only the fourth of their tour of personal appearances. While, like a majority of the others with whom I have indulged in these Monday morning informalities, both Miss Carol and Mr. Stuart derive a tremendous thrill from audience contact, the tour already is beginning to tell upon Miss Carol's health.

She is appearing four times daily, despite physical disturbances occasioned by the constant change of diet, broken rest and nervous strain necessarily incidental to breaking in the act on a series of Midwest splitweeks. Like a valiant little trouper, Miss Carol is game and is carrying on in spite of the fact that White Rock and lemon juice is all, at the moment, that seems to agree with her.

Perhaps "little" is an ill-chosen adjective to apply to Sue Carol. She is rather taller than her screen image would lead one to believe, just as Fifi D'Orsay proved to be. Her hair, too, is a trifle darker brown than I had expected, somehow having acquired a Titian notion of the Carol coloring. Her big, brown eyes that look straight at, but not through, you, are wistful in repose, but fires are lighted behind them by laughter and, I mistrust, similarly by vexation.

It was largely through the instrumentality, as I understand it, of Nick Stuart that Sue Carol broke into pictures back about 1927 or 1928. Theirs was not an impetuous, overnight infatuation and elopement, but a love match that the years developed. They are, I should say, as happy a young couple as you will find in or out of the profession.

The handsomest, too!

AND lest I seem to have devoted too much attention to Miss Carol and not enough to Mr. Stuart, you ought to know that Nick Stuart is as alert, as likable and as literate a young man as you will come across in a month of Sundays. Perhaps what makes him and his charming wife seem so tremendously well mated is that there is something patrician about them both. It is a quality difficult to define, but extremely easy to apprehend once in their company.

Of course, you already know that, like Edward G. Robinson, Konrad Bercovici and others whose names have been allied with the cinema with distinction to them both, Nick Stuart is by birth a Roumanian. His conversational English is more like that of a well-schooled young Englishman.

My guess would be that he stands about 5 feet 8 inches, or maybe 9. It requires no guess to see that he is staunchly put together. His eyes and hair are black—with a snap and sparkle to them—his features finely chiseled and when he smiles you wonder how he ever escaped the tooth paste people.

You might gather from all this that I sort of like these engaging young artists after an hour in their company.

Well, who wouldn't?

HANS KINDLER WINS OVATION AT CONCERT

Symphony Orchestra, Heard in Third of Sunday Concerts, Pleases.

Despite the rainy afternoon there was a fine audience for the third Sunday concert of the National Symphony Orchestra. The program was devoted to Mozart, Schubert, Liszt and Wagner, and served to further impress regular attendants with the remarkable results Hans Kindler has achieved in such a short time.

Under his conductorship this orchestra has a smoothness and sweetness that already puts it in the front rank. There is every essence of refinement, which is particularly noticeable in the pianissimo.

To one who has listened to Kindler as a great cellist it is apparent that he imparts to his orchestra the same qualities which are characteristic of his own playing. Those who have expressed surprise at the excellence of the orchestra on its first appearance should hear it now.

There was an ovation for Kindler and the orchestra in the playing of Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony. Here the audience was so eager to show its approval that it broke in with applause between the allegro and andante movements.

This was a thing which does not please conductors but, however Kindler may have felt, he waited patiently for the interruption to end. Likewise he exhibited patience with the late arrivals at the beginning of the program.

A splendid reception was accorded Miksa Merson, Hungarian pianist, who has been in Washington for four years, and was the soloist of the afternoon. His selection was the Hungarian Fantasy by Liszt for piano and orchestra.

Mr. Merson gave an artistic and finished interpretation of this, showing excellent technique, and the applause was so great that he finally played another number. This time it was a waltz of his own composition, without orchestral accompaniment.

The thoroughly enjoyable program was brought to a brilliant conclusion by the orchestra playing the overture to "Rienzi," by Wagner. Kindler time and again had the orchestra rise to acknowledge its share of the applause.

THE THEATER LAST NIGHT

By NELSON B. BELL

"THE WIVES OF HENRY VIII." James B. Pond presents Cornelia Otis Skinner in a creation of her own authorship, with incidental music selected by Miss Skinner, arranged by Lowell Patton and orchestrated by Adolf Schmid. Costumes by Helene Pons studio. The presentation preceded by selections from Miss Skinner's repertoire of original character sketches. At the National Theater.

It is a superb achievement of creative genius and interpretative skill when a single individual is able to produce upon an audience the effect of numerous presences upon the stage and the enactment of completely rounded drama as Miss Cornelia Otis Skinner did in the National Theater last night.

Aided only by appropriate costuming and adroit lighting, with an occasional single chair or bench set against the unchanged setting of wine-colored velvet drapes, Miss Skinner brought to life vivid episodes in the harried lives of the six queens of an oddly paradoxical British King, both kindly and bitterly ruthless, depending upon what he conceived to be the just deserts of the subject of his immediate mood. In the six incidents of this major offering of the evening, Miss Skinner revealed a keen eye for the keynote of character, rich versatility and great lingual facility.

The distinction of this remarkable young woman's performance must be attributed no less to her penetrating insight as an author than to her ample endowments as the portrayer of the pivotal character in each of the unique dramatic conceptions she places before us. Her character studies are by no means monologues, save in the sense that only one person utters the lines that are heard by the auditor. Those lines, however, are so deftly turned, so pregnant with implication and suggestion, query and response, that by their very nature they epitomize the understandable colloquies of entire groups of unseen figures.

So completely is this so that Miss Skinner last night was accorded the tribute of applause as spontaneous and as prolonged as has greeted any new multiple-character production of the season upon the fall of her final curtain. It was an ovation that was eminently deserved.

Of the six wives of Henry VIII—Catharine of Aragon, Anne Boleyn, Jane Seymour, Anne of Cleves, Katheryn Howard and Katherine Parr—Miss Skinner's depiction of Catharine of Aragon, the imperious princess of Spain, who shared the English throne for almost a quarter of a century; Jane Seymour, the young, frightened and shrinkingly lovely mother of King Henry's only son, and Katherine Parr, twice a widow and the last of Henry's wives, seemed to these eyes the most authentic, the most soundly wrought and the most acutely expository of the artiste's great gift.

The tragic moment in the life of Anne Boleyn—the hour before her execution—was not quite tragic enough. Here, for the only brief interval of the evening, it seemed to me, Miss Skinner fell something short of the requirements of the task she had set herself. Anne of Cleves, "The Flanders mare," was a comic bit of splendid execution.

In all of her characterizations Miss Skinner betrays an unexcelled mastery of both language and dialect. Spanish, French, German and Latin all occur in some appreciable measure, as well as the dialects derived from them.

Preceding "The Wives of Henry VIII," five original character sketches were presented to form part 1 of the two-hour program—"Eve of Departure," "In a Gondola," "Homework," "Monte Carlo" and "A Lady Explorer."

If "Henry VIII" fleetingly suggested Ruth Draper, these shorter skits similarly brought vaguely to mind the monologues of Beatrice Herford, sister of the humorist, Oliver. To all of Miss Skinner's work, however, there is an inimitable touch that is distinctly her own and nobody else's. While there is a submerged quality of seriousness in "In a Gondola" and "Monte Carlo," these sketches all are essentially comic in subject matter and intent. "Home Work" and "A Lady Explorer" are extremely amusing.

Tonight will, regrettably, mark Miss Skinner's final performance.

TILSON TO BE GIVEN 'CONSOLATION' JOBS

Republican candidate for the Third District seat.

In some quarters Mr. Tilson undoubtedly will be hurt, but he will also have the advantage of a feeling of sympathy among the voters which may offset the arguments of the Connecticut Republicans who would like to see some other Republican get a chance for the seat.

There is a new fly in the Connecticut Republican ointment now, however, in the person of the Democratic governor of the State, Gov. Wilbur Cross, who is running things as he thinks best, without great regard for the Democratic party leaders, such as Thomas J. Spellacy and others.

State and national Republican leaders are keeping an anxious eye on the situation, but just now are not finding anything to smile happily about, and, unless the present political trend changes materially before the next election, a Democrat may very well oust the erstwhile floor leader.

Action of Hot Volcanic Ash On Pools Held Basis of Life

(Associated Press.)

The new possibility that life may have originated from nothing more complicated than hot-water puddles formed after the world's first rain is pictured in the annual report of the Smithsonian Institution.

These served as "incubators" for low forms of life, an article by Dr. As Ar Hadding, Swedish geologist, contends.

Discoveries about what seems to be happening inside the sun and moon, a connection between variations in the sun's heat and the great ice ages of the past, and new light on the age of man in Europe also are included in the report issued yesterday. It is presented by Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the institution.

Life probably got its start in what are now the polar regions, says Dr. Hadding's article, because those parts of the earth first cooled enough to allow water to condense on the surface. He believes the water, collecting in pools in the hot volcanic ash that then covered the earth was heated and acted chemically on the ash in such a way as to produce the first forms of life.

The heart of the sun is composed of gas subjected to such terrific pressure that it is about 28 times as dense as water. The sun, says Dr. St. John, is radiating itself away into space at the rate of approximately 4,200,000 tons a second. This has been going on for two thousand million years and will continue for another fifteen thousand billion years before it is entirely dissipated.

Glaciers, the sun's heat and long distance weather forecasting are tied up by Chester A. Reeds, geologist. Glaciers, he says, show evidence of the cycles in the sun's heat that some scientists believe will eventually make long distance weather predictions possible.

Men were living in Europe as much as 30,000 years ago, it is concluded by the Rev. Stephen Richarz, of St. Mary's Seminary, Techny Ill., after a check of all available evidence.

Changes in the moon's face were reported by E. V. Forbes, of Cambridge University, England, who thinks they were caused by heat generated by radioactive material inside the moon. Hence the moon may not be entirely cold and dead as commonly believed. It seems to be expanding, Mr. Forbes says, and not shrinking, as it would do if lifeless.

Another astronomer, Dr. Charles E. St. John, has taken the temperature of the sun's interior and found it is about 29,000,000 degrees above absolute zero. (Absolute zero is 271 degrees below zero Centigrade.)

SAM WEST 8TH AMONG AMERICAN LEAGUE HITTERS

Football Nets Million for Charity

Army-Navy, Alabama and Oklahoma Games Aid.

Credit Due Middies for Showing Against West Point Team.

By HERBERT W. BARKER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (A.P.).—Football's contribution toward the relief of the unemployed has passed the $1,000,000 mark, thanks principally to the Army-Navy clash in the Yankee Stadium yesterday.

A crowd of 77,000, paying approximately $375,000 for the privilege, watched a determined Navy defense finally yield to superior Army power, 17 to 7, in one of the finest football games of the season. Of the gross receipts, about $325,000 was realized for charity.

The Army-Navy classic was the outstanding feature of yesterday's sparse national schedule, but Southern California hoisted storm signals for the benefit of Tulane by handing Georgia a 60-to-0 trouncing at Los Angeles. Oklahoma surprised with a 20-to-7 triumph over Tulsa, and the Alabama All-Stars, playing three 20-minute games, defeated Catholic University, 7 to 0 and tied George Washington and Georgetown in scoreless battles.

Navy Shares in Glory.

Army won the service duel at New York, but had to share some of the glory with Navy. Underdogs in the betting and outweighed more than 10 pounds to the man, Navy offered so gallant a defense that Army was forced to take to the air to win. The Cadets' first score, a placement field goal by Travis Brown from the 15-yard line, came after Navy had stopped the Cadet running attack cold. The first Army touchdown came only after a long pass had put the ball in position for a score. The second Army touchdown came on a sustained march down field.

Navy scored its touchdown on a long pass from Lou Kirn to Joe Tschirgi. Kirn's passing and running were the only threats in a somewhat limited Navy attack, but in the line, Tuttle, Underwood and James played magnificently. For Army Ray Stecker was the chief ground gainer. Price, Summerfelt, Trice and others were outstanding on the defense.

Southern California Romps.

Southern California had nothing more than a romp with a lighter Georgia Team and the Southerners suffered one of the most decisive defeats in their football history. Southern California's powerful backs plowed through the Georgia line almost at will and the Trojans' all-around performance made it clear Tulane will have its hands full stopping that attack in the Rose Bowl game New Year's Day.

Mexico's Poloists Win In California Match

Los Angeles, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Displaying teamwork superior to that of the California quartet, the Mexico City picked polo team won the second game of their international series, 9 to 6, at the Riviera Country Club Field today.

Capt. Antonio Nava, playing No. 2 for the invaders, and Capt. Antonio Perez, Mexican back, were responsible for the victory which made the score for the series 1-all. The deciding contest will be played next Sunday. Much better form was shown today by the visitors than in the game they lost, 11 to 10, last Sunday.

With the international star, Eric Pedley in the line-up, the California four played a great defensive game.

Greenleaf Holds Lead In National Cue Play

Philadelphia, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Ralph Greenleaf, of New York, the old maestro of the felt-topped tables, appears headed for another pocket billiard crown as the national tournament here enters its final week, with 46 matches already played.

With seven days to go, Greenleaf tops the 12-man field with a record of six conquests and not a single setback. He also leads the tournament in two other respects. His cluster of 117 is the best run and his two-inning game is the best performance.

The defending champion, Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, is tied for second place by Frank Taberski, of Schenectady, N. Y., a former title holder. Both have won five matches and dropped one.

But the nonchalant Greenleaf, who makes a shot and then calls his next one before the cue ball stops rolling, yields the spotlight to George Kelly as far as the local fans are concerned. The sensational Philadelphia youngster is right behind the champions in fourth place. He has won six games and lost two, but has played two more than Greenleaf and one more than Rudolph and Taberski, who top him.

The standings:

	W.	L.	High run
Greenleaf, New York	6	0	117
Rudolph, Cleveland	5	1	94
Taberski, Schenectady	5	1	93
Kelly, Philadelphia	6	2	58
Ponzi, Philadelphia	4	3	70
Lauri, Brooklyn	4	4	85
Camp, Detroit	4	5	55
Allen, Kansas City	3	4	51

Concord Wins Feature Fray In Capital's Soccer League

Marlboro Upsets Rosedale, 3-1; British United Beats Rockville, 5-1; Gaithersburg Ties Fort Myer, 2-2.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

CONCORD'S clever little soccer club won the feature match on the Capital City League's card yesterday by proving to be better mudders than the Columbia Heights squad. British United and Marlboro also seemed to be able to carry mud-cleaven shoes without difficulty to win over Rockville and Rosedale, respectively. Gaithersburg and Fort Myer played a 2-to-2 tie.

Columbia Heights put up a valiant fight against Concord, but despite the capable work of Watson at goal and the clever passing of Lewis in the outside right position the Northwest lads were no match for the Germans, who won, 2 to 1. Rockville, with nine men on the field at the start, put up a hard fight against British United, but numbers and experience proved too much for the Marylanders, who lost, 5 to 1. Marlboro showed 1930 form to down Rosedale, 5 to 1.

Herath and Kanthal were the heroes of the German victory, the former taking care of the Concord goal in the first half knee deep in mud and in the second half playing a stellar game on the forward line. Kanthal did not seem to be disturbed by the heavy going at any stage of the game and flashed up and down the field, passing and blocking as if he were on a dry turf.

The winners scored in the early minutes of play in a heavy downpour, and shortly afterward Referee Kruse called a halt until the shower was over. Shortly after the resumption of play Concord was awarded a penalty kick, but failed to convert. The half ended with the ultimate winners leading, 1 to 0.

Columbia Heights tied the game midway the second period, but played on even terms for but a short while, as Hoffman toed one past Watson a few minutes later for the winning goal.

Rockville put up a brave fight against British United, but with but nine men to confront the determined drives of the victors there is little wonder that the Britishers had a 3-to-0 lead in the first 30 minutes of play. Rockville scored in the latter ten minutes of the first half

COX LEADING; RAIN HALTS MATCH

Von Elm Is 5 Down in Final Round of Coast Tourney.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Willy Cox, tall Brooklyn pro, was 5 up on George Von Elm, Los Angeles, at the half-way mark of their 36-hole final match of the $7,500 national match play open golf championship today when it was postponed because torrential rains had turned the Lake Merced course into a puddle-covered layout.

The second eighteen holes will be played tomorrow afternoon, weather permitting.

Survivors of a field of 198, Cox and Von Elm began their 36-hole duel in a sweeping rain. The downpour continued throughout the match while a scant hatful of spectators took a soaking along with the contestants.

Cox proved a better bad weather competitor than his stocky blond opponent, and turned in a 74, two over par, for the course. Von Elm had an approximate 80. He picked up on the eleventh after his ball was buried in the green so deeply it was barely visible. Billy Burke, national open champion, who refereed the match, gave Von Elm a six on this hole, Cox having won it with a five.

Cox Gains 2 Up Lead.

Cox held a 2-up lead at the end of the first nine, shooting it in 37, two over par. Von Elm posted a 39.

They halved the first four holes. Cox went 1 up at the fifth with a par four, Von Elm missing a 6-foot putt for a half. The next hole Von Elm missed a 4-foot putt, the ball rimming the cup.

The Los Angeles boy won the eighth with a par 3 after chipping up for a 2-foot putt, but Cox came back to take the ninth with a par 4. Each had birdie fours on the tenth and Cox went 3 up at the next hole when Von Elm conceded.

The Brooklyn pro continued the pace, to win the thirteenth with a par 5, the fourteenth with a birdie 2 and went 6 up at the sixteenth. He had a 5, one over par for the hole, but Von Elm three-putted to take a six. The seventeenth green held so much water Von Elm putted with a mashie, to win it with a par 3, and cut Cox's lead to 5 up. Each turned in fives, one over par, on the eighteenth.

Convict Pledges $25, Payable in One Year, To Rockne Memorial

Special to The Washington Post.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 13.—Knute Rockne's influence reached even to the shadows. An inmate of a prison in Iowa has sent a pledge for $25 to the Rockne Memorial Field House Fund at Notre Dame, it was announced here today.

The donor, whose prison number is given as No. 12910, expects to make his pledge good a year from now.

"My present situation," he wrote, "does not allow me to write 'draft inclosed,' but I am grateful to have the chance to participate in the cause for a lasting memorial to the one and only 'Rock'—Knute Rockne.

"Attached is my signed pledge in the amount of $25, marked to be paid in full before or by December 1, 1932. If my bit in this way is at all acceptable, I shall consider it a pledge of honor. Yes, I still retain that * * *."

LANDERS AND M'KENNA TO CLASH

Alexandria Day Nursery Program Offers Good Bouts.

A NEWCOMER to the fight game hereabouts will be introduced to local fans tomorrow night when Frankie McKenna, fast-stepping Baltimore bantamweight, engages the hard-hitting Billy Landers in the main event of the Day Nursery benefit card in Portner's arena, Alexandria.

McKenna, who defeated Landers on points in Norfolk two years ago, has done most of his fighting around Baltimore, never having shown his wares before a local audience. He is especially desirous of making a strong impression tomorrow night as the fight game is just about "washed up" in his home town and he is looking for a fertile field.

That good fights will pay in this vicinity was demonstrated during the summer at Fort Washington where the Army athletic authorities considerably increased the funds to sponsor the doughboys' recreational pursuits with a long series of profitable shows.

Promise Real Fights.

Promoters of the Day Nursery card are pledged to a policy of securing the same kind of bouts that were held at Fort Washington. "Fighters who fight" is their motto. In their last effort they succeeded in living up to this aim.

McKenna doubtless will earn a place in the pugilistic sun here if he can dispose of the fighting gob, Landers. The latter is popular in this section, and anybody who can "take him would enjoy the same favor with the fans.

Landers, however, has no idea of helping McKenna along. He will be looking out strictly for his own interests tomorrow night, for which no one can criticise him. In his last appearance before Capital fans, Billy bowed to Frankie De Angelo after having beaten Frankie and gained a draw in two previous encounters with the Southeast Italian.

Irving Meets Vance.

While the McKenna-Landers clash headlines the bill, much interest centers in the semiwind-up involving Henry Irving and Frank Vance, a pair of local light heavyweights. It is a return meeting, Irving having scored a knockout over Frank the first time they battled last summer at the fort. Since then Irving has gained recognition as one of the hardest punchers ever seen hereabouts, while Vance, too, has improved, though not quite so sensationally.

Kid Cosden and Jack Lamar, bantamweights, will tussle in the main preliminary. Other bouts will show Roddy Davis vs. K. O. Burns, Marino Marini vs. Buck Reed and Billy King vs. Billy Reed.

Fireman Back Plays With Metal Plate in Leg

Los Angeles, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Three years ago Bill Evans, local fire fighter, was so badly hurt that doctors said he probably never would walk again.

This fall the same Bill Evans, with a metal plate supplanting part of a bone in his leg crushed in the accident, a fire truck collision, is playing half back on the Los Angeles Fire Department Football Team.

Evans, who spent five months in a hospital, now is one of the best kickers on the squad and is considered a fine ball carrier.

Miami Open Gives Pros Chance at $2,500 Purse

Miami, Fla., Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Winter golfers will be given an opportunity to share in a $2,500 purse for the annual Miami open tournament early in January.

This announcement followed news that the La Gorce $15,000 open would not be held this year. Leading pros of the country will be invited to participate.

Bobby Jones won the original Miami open. Then came Gene Sarazen to win both the Miami open and Miami Beach open in two successive years. The tournaments were held within a period of two weeks, alternating their dates.

SPANISH SOCCERISTS WIN.

Dublin, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—The Spanish Football Association soccer team defeated the Irish Free State 5-0 before a crowd of 35,000 today.

Fraters Win Capital City Grid Title

Alexandrians Defeat Dixie Pigs, 12-7, in League Finale.

Trick Play, Ending in Pass, Wins Contest; Mercury Ahead.

PLAYING in a quagmire of mud, the Alexandria Fraters yesterday won the championship of the unlimited division of The Post's Capital City League by trouncing the Dixie Pigs 12 to 7 at Seat Pleasant. Inclement weather held the attendance down to only a handful of fans. In another league game, Mercury defeated the Griffith-Blue Coals, 14 to 0.

The poor condition of the Seat Pleasant field and a wet ball greatly hampered the play of the elevens, both of which rely on a dry field and speed as their most important weapons. The Fraters drew first blood in the opening period when Bob Agner flopped on a fumbled ball on the Dixies' 5-yard line.

After two unsuccessful attempts to go through the line, Ellett Cabell circled right end for the score. Previous to this, the Fraters had marched on a sustained drive deep into the home team's territory where the latter held for downs.

Miles Intercepts Pass.

The Pigs assumed a one-point lead in the second quarter when Miles intercepted Cabell's heave and stepped 30 yards to the final chalk mark. Eddie Colliflower accounted for the extra point with an end run, following a faked placement kick. The Alexandrians tallied what turned out to be the winning touchdown late in the second period on a triple pass behind the line with a forward pass tacked on for good measure. The play caught the Dixies napping and Joe Hamilton took Cabell's toss on the dead run for the score.

From a Dixie Pig viewpoint, the work of Ed Radtke and Miles was outstanding. Miles, at left end, smeared more than one running play of the Fraters. Radtke's booting staved off Frater threats on no less than four occasions when a score seemed imminent. One of his kicks gained 80 precious yards. Ellett Cabell, Bell, Dave Henderson, Bob Agner and Dave Bayliss played heads-up ball all the way for the victors.

Pass From Self to Lewis Scores.

For three quarters of their game it seemed that Mercury and the Griffs would conclude activities with a scoreless tie on their hands, but in the final period the former champs found themselves and pushed over for two touchdowns and the victory. Self passed to Lewis, who ran the remaining 15 yards to the goal line for the first score. The second marker was added within the space of a few minutes, when Sperdi, Lewis, G. Limerick and Kolly joined forces in advancing the ball to the 1-yard stripe from where Lewis plunged over. Handiboe added the point after touchdown on both occasions with well-aimed drop kicks.

Rice and Wolfe scintillated in the line for the winning aggregation, while Gerdom was the outstanding player for the Griffs.

Celtics Down Mohawks, 6 to 0

Dewey Scores on Run Around Right End in Last Period.

Mud Hampers Play of Rivals; Snyder Star on Defense.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

CHIEF BOATSWAIN'S MATE JOE SWEENEY piloted the good ship "Celtic" through a sea of mud at Griffith Stadium yesterday afternoon and, despite the fact that he had the old craft headed for the port time and again, failed to make a landing. In the last period, Sweeney turned the tiller over to Admiral Dewey, who took one look at his trusty compass, reefed his mainsail and slid into the dock with his quarter deck awash. Safely in port, the Celtic crew examined the craft to find the reason for the rough voyage.

They found that somebody had tied an old mud scow named "Mohawk" to the back of the boat. The Celtic sailors painted the words, "Beaten, 6-0" on the side of the scow, rigged up an old sail and gave the crewless tub a push toward Southeast and wig-wagged the following message to President Rob Roy Mackey, "Was it an exhibition, was it for the championship or was it a dream? Bail this out with your wind pump."

Celtics Finally Beat Hawks.

More seriously, the Celtics finally won a football game from the Mohawks after three tries. It is to the credit of the players of both teams that they played despite the fact that the spectattors could have been crowded into Mr. Griffith's office. The field was so muddy that many bets were made at even money that neither team would score, and, as usual, "wise money" burned up.

At that, the Celtics threatened throughout the game, but could not master the sterling Mohawk defense until the last period. Players of both teams played rugged football, as much as the slippery footing would allow.

The Celtics had two backs, Sweeney and Dewey, who could hold their feet in the going, and a kicker in Les McMenamin, who had a total disregard for the wet ball.

The Mohawks were unfortunate, losing their coach and star lineman, Artie Wondrack, in the first half. Wondrack was in the game for only one play and came out apparently with a broken hand.

Snitz Snyder, three-fourths of the Mohawk offense on a dry field, made one good gallop yesterday but on other occasions either was stopped by the Celtics or slipped in the mud. However, Snyder put up as brilliant a defensive game as has been seen at the park this season.

Vik Gets Into Game.

The Celtics had an edge in line play and showed Vik, former Notre Dame star, at end. Vik turned in some nice tackles but, like everybody else, was handicapped by the mud. However, he failed to steal the limelight from Skinny Slinton Price, who could play end for anybody.

Oddly, it was the Mohawks who showed the first offensive bid of the game. McMenamin had the advantage over Colliere in a short kicking duel which opened the battle. Snyder squirmed away from several tacklers and worked his way into the open for a 25-yard run which put the ball in Celtic territory for one of the few times during the afternoon.

Hensley ended the drive, however, by intercepting a pass for the Celtics. Joe Sweeney began a Celtic movement, carrying the ball three out of four times on a march to within 10 yards of the Mohawk goal line. After this drive was stopped, Sweeney started another, ripping his way to the Mohawk 1-foot line where the Hawks gained the ball on downs.

Sweeney Finally Loses Hope.

In the third period, the Celtics, with Sweeney and Dewey doing the bulk of the carrying, were on the verge of another touchdown, but the Mohawks were not in a giving mood. Having gained enough ground to fill in the Eastern Branch without scor-

Chick Meehan Resigns Post As N. Y. U. Football Coach

By HENRY McLEMORE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (U.P.).—John F. (Chick) Meehan, head coach of football at New York University for the last seven years, today terminated his relations with the university. Meehan said he desired "that no consideration be given to the renewal of my football coaching contract," which expired recently.

Although his statement was similar to that of Calvin Coolidge's famous six-word phrase "I do not choose to run," there could be no mistaking its finality. Meehan is definitely and finally out as the genius behind the Violets' football activities.

Following a controversy in which the Daily News, New York University undergraduate publication, demanded Meehan's resignation, the university board of athletic control met yesterday, but failed to make public its action in regard to a 1932 coach.

Meehan's statement follows:

"My high regard for New York University prompts me to announce that I desire no consideration be given to the renewal of my football coaching contract.

"I want emphatically to voice the honor and esteem which I hold for the boys who have played under my direction during the past seven years, these boys having met and completed with the entrance and eligibility requirements of New York University.

"I am also appreciative of the many friends and associates I have made at New York University, and I desire not to involve either them or the boys in any controversy.

"A copy of this statement has been forwarded to Chancellor Elmer E. Brown.

"For the press, I offer the information that I have made no coaching plans for 1932."

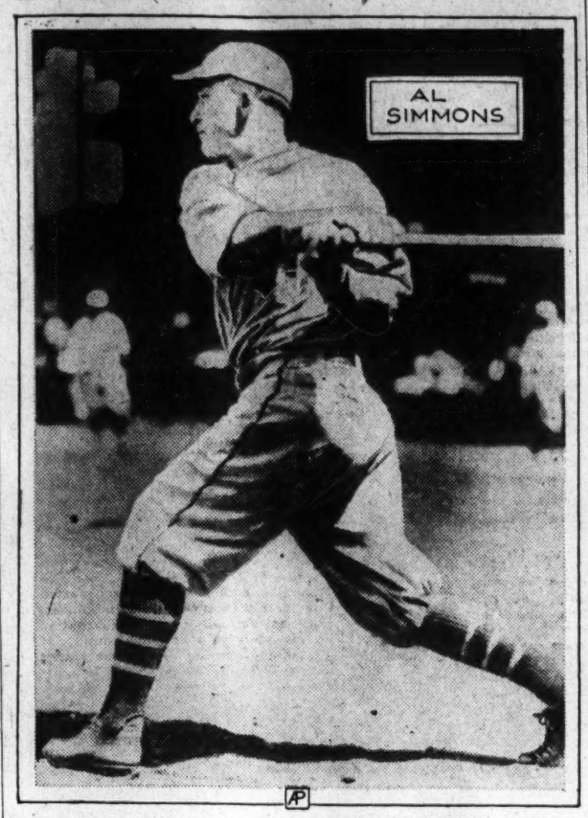
The Daily News demand for Meehan's scalp appeared in the form of an editorial headed "Time to Retire," and read in part:

"We do not want Mr. Meehan because Mr. Meehan stands for a university policy of 'Big Time' football with all its corollary evils, recruiting of players, lavish entertainment of prospects subsidization of athletes, athletic scholarships, physical punishment for delinquents, and a general drafting of students to the university for the sole purpose of playing football."

Meehan refused to comment upon the charges, although several of the New York sports writers took up the cudgels in his defense, pointing out that any of Meehan's actions were sanctioned by university authorities.

During his seven-year stay at New York University, Meehan established himself as one of the country's most successful younger coaches. His teams had an enviable winning record, earned in competition with the nation's strongest teams.

Tops American League Hitters



Philadelphia Athletics' star outfielder, Al Simmons, for a second consecutive year, captured batting honors in the junior circuit. Despite the fact that a slower ball was used last season, Simmons added 20 points to his average.

Summerfelt, Star Guard, Named 1932 Army Captain

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 14 (A.P.).—Milton F. Summerfelt, of Chicago, regular left guard, today was elected captain of the 1932 Army Football Team.

Summerfelt, a regular all this season, was one of the bulwarks of the strong Army line. He played the full 60 minutes against Notre Dame and about 52 minutes against Navy yesterday.

At High School of Benton Harbor, Mich., Summerfelt won three letters in football. He attended Northwestern University for one year, winning numerals on the Freshman Football Team. At West Point in his plebe year he was on the football, boxing and lacrosse squads, winning numerals in football and lacrosse. Last year he was a sub for Hillberg at guard for the varsity football team and won a major "A" in that sport and in lacrosse. He is a rifle expert, pistol marksman and a cadet corporal. He is 21 years old, stands 5 feet 11 inches and weighs 190 pounds.

SHIFTS TO DALLAS.

Rip Radcliffe, the Texas League's leading 1931 batter, will play for Dallas next season instead of Shreveport.

BILL LOONEY PICKED TO WIN JEFFERSON FEATURE TODAY

Chene Named To Finish Second

Deceptive Selected to Repeat in Fourth on the Card.

Snodgrass Looks for Diodoro to Cop in Opener.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

JEFFERSON PARK RACE TRACK, New Orleans, La., Dec. 13.—A program of claiming races, headed by the Rigelets Purse, a test over the mile and 70 yards route for 3-year-olds and upward, will be offered patrons of the sport at Jefferson Park tomorrow. The usual large and bulky fields have been entered in the supporting events, which are fashioned for the cheaper class of thoroughbreds.

In the headliner, fifth event, a group of routers will match strides over the fast drying out track. BILL LOONEY, from the E. Houghton string, which scored rather easily in his last start, and dropping 2 pounds, is fancied over CHENE. The latter, a clever mudder from the C. V. Whitney string, has been training well and should furnish stern opposition. NELLIE CUSTIS has shown ability to carry her speed over a route and, lightly weighted with 89 pounds, may prove dangerous.

FIRST RACE—DIODORO holds a strong chance to annex the honors in the opening 6-furlong dash. The J. A. Marsch colorbearer was beaten a nose by Calwick last start and, off that effort, appears best of this lot. TRANSGRESSION has shown improvement in previous starts and is the one to fear. ANNAPOLITAN is on the bottom of the list, but may finish in the money, if he starts.

SECOND RACE — The second event should result in a victory for THE OKAH. This clever plater has been scratched several times and may be waiting a spot. In this group, he should experience little difficulty. ST. JIM and JUDGE DIRENZO may battle it out for the remainder of the purse, with HALLIARD an outside possibility.

THIRD RACE—MAKE BELIEVE is the most fancied. Chief opposition should be furnished by SAND FIDDLER. SYDKA probably needed her last, and should improve.

FOURTH RACE—DECEPTIVE, from the Abel & Johnson string, turned in a clever performance in his last winning effort and against a similar field should duplicate. KAY FRANCES will prove a serious threat from her inside post position. POLYP showed a good effort over a muddy track last outing and is selected to gain a part of the award.

SIXTH RACE—LADY MARSCH and INTERIOR, two clever platers are closely rated for the honors in the mile and a sixteenth of the sixth, but should finish in that order. PRETTY PENNY is the show selection.

SEVENTH RACE — The seventh number, a test over the mile and a sixteenth route, for oldsters, is a difficult race to grade. However, on recent form, DEVON, from the J. J. Greely string, is given the call. VOLT METER is favored over DARK SIMON for the place honors.

EIGHTH RACE—In the eighth event, which is a substitute race and fashioned for 4-year-olds and upward, at the mile and a sixteenth distance, STOP GAP figures to score, with ZAHN second and HERENDEEN third.

SANDLOT ROUND ROBIN.

In a round robin, made necessary because of a mix-up in the schedule, the Alcova gridders played to a scoreless tie with the Marion and Ballston teams at Arlington yesterday. The Marion and Ballston teams battled to another scoreless deadlock in the opening tilt. Two 15-minute periods were employed in the games.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

THERE are one-legged sprinters, legless swimming champions and blind bowlers. There are deaf and blind pianists and armless taxi drivers. Physical handicaps that force many to become helpless beggars have only fired others with the determination to do or die.

The loss of both his arms at the shoulders did not prevent Tom McAuliffe from enjoying golf, the sport of which he was so fond. Instead of sitting back and worrying over his ill luck, Tom went after the game with a new enthusiasm, a new determination. As a result he has become an expert golfer, although using only his shoulder and chin as a means of gripping the clubs. And now he tours the country giving exhibitions of his skill, and earning a living while doing the things he likes to do.

The loss of both legs did not prevent "Zimmy" Zibelman from becoming the champion endurance swimmer, nor did the absence of an arm keep the 46-year-old Clarence Charet from winning the tennic championship of the District of Columbia. In all branches of sport men and women have succeeded despite seemingly insurmountable obstacles.

And now comes an armless football player, Lupe Zarate, 152-pound tackle of the McAllen High School team, in McAllen, Tex. Zarate lost both arms in a railroad accident when a small boy, but today his blocking and tackling feature every game that his team plays.

BURROUGHS TEAMS IN UPSETS

McMillan Park and St. Stephen's Record Victories.

TWO upsets were recorded in the Burroughs Citizens Association Football League at Taft Park in the games played yesterday. The leading Colonials suffered their first defeat of the season at the hands of a determined McMillan Park team by a 12-7 score and St. Stephen's won its first league victory by surprising St. Paul's 3-7 decision.

Rain failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the players. The Colonials were completely outplayed by McMillan until late in the fray when they launched a brilliant aerial attack that resulted in their only score.

Harris, Kisby, Bell Stars.

Harris, Kisby and Bell led the Park team to victory. Costly fumbles started St. Paul's on its way to defeat. St. Stephen's, however, deserved to win as it tore through its opponents' forward walls for many long gains and otherwise played good football.

Central and Gonzaga Elevens Sign for 1932

Central High and Gonzaga, the choicest high school football attraction outside of the high school series competition, will be enacted again next year, it was assured yesterday when authorities at the school completed arrangements for a game next November 18, at Central.

It was felt in high school athletic circles that the teams would not play next year.

K. of C. Tossers Win And Lose on Court

The Knights of Columbus, exhibiting the best form they have shown this season, stepped out in the second half of their game with the Pontiacs and won going away by a score of 52 to 22. The outlook was none too rosy for the Caseys in the first half, which ended with the teams deadlocked at 14 to 14.

The home team found its eye in the second half, however, and with Roache, Proctor, Johnny Ahearn and Caspar leading the way, quickly outdistanced its opponents.

In a preliminary, the Southern 100-pound team turned back the K. of C. 100-pounders by a 35-to-34 margin. Wednesday the Caseys will meet the St. Mary's Lyceum five at 815 p. m. in the Alexandria Armory.

SOCCER FRAY ANNEXED BY CONCORD

British and Marlboro Turn in Victories in League.

and put up a better brand of soccer in the final 45 minutes of play, but failed to stop the Englishmen.

Rosedale was somewhat surprised by the showing made by Marlboro. The local kickers had expected a hard game, but did not look for the defeat that was meted out to them by the Prince Georges County booters.

As was expected, Gaithersburg and Fort Myer battled on even terms, but it would be of little satisfaction to their rivals could they have seen the contest. Both clubs displayed an improved brand of play, despite the wet field, and no doubt will give more opposition to the other league clubs in the future.

Robert Bruce, president of the Washington and Southeastern District Soccer Association, has called the monthly meeting of the association for tonight in room 313, District Building, at 8 o'clock. Considerable business of importance has piled up since the last gathering and Mr. Bruce has requested all members to be present.

Firemen and Hopkins Battle to 0-to-0 Tie

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., Dec. 13.—The gridders of Engine Company No. 5 and the Hopkins Furniture Co. today fought through four furious quarters and were all even, 0 to 0, at the end of the game, this making the second consecutive tie they have played.

The Firemen penetrated to Hopkins' 7-yard line in the first quarter on a series of line smashes and two successful forward passes, but lost the ball on a pass over the goal line. In the last quarter both teams threatened, the Fire Fighters rushing the ball to the Furniture boys' 1-yard line only to again lose the ball on an incompleted pass over the goal.

Hopkins, aided by the shifty ball carrying of Sullivan and Hewitt, brought the ball to the Fire Fighters' 7-yard line, but were there held for downs. Nugent was the star ball carrier for the firemen.

District College Tossers In Eight Games This Week

George Washington Opens Season Wednesday.

CAPITAL collegians this week turn their attention solely to basket ball, King Football having bowed his way off the stage in Saturday's big charity spectacle. Eight games of the major indoor winter sport are scheduled for the next five days, including the inaugural performances of Georgetown and Gearge Washington.

The program opens tomorrow night at Tech High School Gym where Georgetown's new quintet, coached by Freddy Mesmer, former Georgetown star, engages Mount Saint Mary's from Emmitsburg, Md. The Hilltoppers also will play on Friday night at the same place, meeting the famous Duke Blue Devils in the first of two contests the latter have scheduled here.

Colonials Open Season Wednesday.

George Washington begins its campaign Wednesday night on its own court in a clash with Shenandoah College from Dayton, Va. This is the only game scheduled for the Colonials before the Christmas holidays.

Shenandoah will remain for games with Columbus Thursday night and Gallaudet Friday night, playing the Crimson at Takoma-Silver Spring High and the Blues at Kendall Green.

Catholic University, following an unsuccessful trip to New York, opens its home season on Wednesday night at Brookland, opposing Maryland State Normal. The Cardinals also will see action Saturday night against Duke. In the other game of the program, Columbus will entertain Bridgewater College.

Only one member of last year's varsity five is expected to start for Georgetown Tuesday night, Capt. Dick King, a forward, is the lone veteran named in Coach Mesmer's probable line-up for the Duke contest. Flanking Capt. King at forward will be Bill Connors, from last year's freshmen, which group will furnish the center, Jim Murphy, and one of the guards, Joe O'Neill. The other guard will be Jack Crowley, a junior who was prevented from playing last winter on account of an operation.

G. U. to Name Team After Holidays.

Mesmer, however, has not picked these five players definitely as his regular team, and it is likely that he will await the new year before finally making a selection. Tommy Carolan, crack guard of last year's yearlings; Ben Gellis, a speedy forwrd, who is handicapped at present by a football injury, and Vernon Murphy, the only other veteran returning in addition to King, are making strong bids for regular assignments.

Being an exponent of the professional style of basket ball, Mesmer has been stressing perfection of the short pass in Georgetown's workouts. He hopes to train his players to shoot only after the ball has been passed in close to the basket, or, in other words to withhold their fire for ideal openings in the defense. The short pass, he figures, will make these openings if properly executed.

Mount St. Mary's is expected to furnish warm opposition in the Hilltoppers' inaugural and will present a fine goal-tosser in Joe Lynch, a Washington product. Lynch holed a couple of heaves from mid-floor to help his team subdue Benjamin Franklin, 21-16, last Saturday.

Maryland Starts Drills Today.

Today will see the beginning of intensive practice for Maryland University, Southern Conference champions, who will make their bow in competition this season against Wisconsin at Madison on December 30. Several of Coach Burton Shipley's tossers have been engaged in football thus far, thus precluding the formation of a regular line-up. With five members of last year's undefeated freshmen available along with all but one of the varsity squad that captured the Dixie championship at Atlanta, Maryland faces the 1931-1932 court campaign with the brightest prospects in its history.

Pets Defeated By Brookland Team, 33-0

Boys Club Grid Team Gains Tie for 3rd Placee in Loop.

Pennants Fight Hard But Bow to Speed of Winners.

RUNNING up the highest score recorded in the league this season, the Brookland Boys' Club yesterday completed its Post Capital City League schedule with a 33-to-0 victory over the elements and Petworth Pennants at Silver Spring. The victory enables the clubmen to tie with the Brentwood Hawks for third place in the final league standings. The Centennials, former champions, clinched the runner-up position when awarded a forfeit over the Columbias, who failed to appear for their game.

Brookland served notice of its intention to pile up the score in the first period when it drove to the Pennants' 6-yard line, where a fumble temporarily halted the proceedings. For the first period Petworth warded off the Brookland advances, but in the second the eventual winners brought their heavy artillery into action and scored after a drive from midfield. Two successive 30-yard runs, with Luebkert and McNally attending to the ball-carrying duties netted the second marker.

Petworth Fights Back.

Petworth attempted to make a game of it, but its lighter opponents were not to be denied and time after time the Boys Club eleven pushed the oval into the enemy territory. Five touchdowns in all were scored. Luebkert, Farran and Duffiey scored the remaining six-pointers. "Heine" Franke, Brookland half back, covered himself with glory with his line plunging and good defensive work. Franke worked like a Trojan, and, although he did no scoring, was largely responsible for the other back-field men's gains.

This game brought to an end one of the most successful seasons the winning team has ever enjoyed and the most disastrous in the history of the Petworth Club. Brookland made a game fight for the championship, tying the Centennials and dropping a 6-0 decision to the champion Palace eleven.

Vista Team Surprises In J. C. C. Basket Ball

Featured by the upset victory registered by Vista over Aza, defending champion, the Jewish Community Center Basket Ball League opened its season yesterday with three games. Vista scored, 26 to 18; Beta Phi Epsilon walloped Phi Lambda Nu, 64-18, and Athliso nosed out Phi Beta, 34-32.

The defensive work of Understein and Singman contributed heavily to Vista's starting win. Zola stood out in Beta Phi Epsilon's runaway victory, while Weinberg led the winning attack for Athliso.

Aid's Error at White House Gave Bolivians Precedence

(Associated Press.)

When it comes to diplomatic precedence, the Paraguayans have the luck but the Bolivians have the precedence.

To avoid difficulties of precedence, the delegates drew lots at an early meeting of the Chaco nonaggression pact negotiations. The Paraguayans drew the right to have precedence at formal exchanges. But on the three occasions when such precedence has been conspicuous, the Bolivians have come first.

The first occasion was at the formal meeting between Dr. Soler, and Diez de Medina at the Pan-American Union, November 11. After Chairman White had opened the meeting Diez de Medina, after a moment of silence, arose and responded first.

The second occasion was at the luncheon given by Secretary Stimson in honor of the delegations at the Pan-American Union. Diez de Medina responded first to the remarks of Chairman Stimson.

The third occasion was at President and Mrs. Hoover's reception Thursday night. The Bolivians entered first and were introduced. The Paraguayans went home in disgust.

Charge Ynsfran, of the Paraguayan Legation, wrote a formal explanation to the State Department and yesterday published, in a letter to The Washington Post, the Paraguayan version of the affair.

Now an unnamed White House aid may be allowed to take the blame. If he does, the negotiations will probably continue with consideration of the one-year truce proposed by Bolivia.

The Bolivian explanation as made by Minister Abelli is that the Bolivians entered the White House by the proper side, but were conducted to the diplomatic room by a White House aid who recognized Diez de Medina, former minister here. He said the entrance lists only showed the positions of entering by the titles of the envoys.

"Members of their staffs were not named," he said, "although the chiefs of missions were supposed to introduce them. Thus, I supposed that to save space the title of the envoy only had been written and that it was assumed his staff would accompany him. Consequently, when I learned Mr. Diez de Medina and Mr. Finot had been escorted to this room, I assumed I was to introduce them, since they are attached to the legation as plenipotentiaries here. Not one of us had the slightest idea there was anything wrong in the procedure. I did not notice the Paraguayans were not present, being preoccupied with finding my own place in the line formed to meet the President. Mr. Diez de Medina and Mr. Finot followed instructions exactly upon reaching the White House, and if there was an innocent mistake by a White House aid it can not be laid at the feet of the Bolivian delegates. If any one had said there in the waiting room that there was an error, I would have corrected it in any way indicated."

Both sides said yesterday they considered the matter ended and indicated it would not affect the negotiations. So the matter rests with a White House aid being allowed by both sides to hold the blame for having conducted Diez de Medina and Finot to the wrong room.

Sooner Grid Star Picks Humble Job

Norman, Okla., Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Turning his back on the cash lure of professional football, Col. (Bus) Mills, all-Big Six quarterback in 1930 and Oklahoma's gift to baseball, has taken a lowly checkroom job as a means of continuing his quest for a degree in petroleum engineering.

Baseball will interrupt the academic process, however, for next March the three-year Sooner star will report to the New Orleans club of the Southern Association for a trial in the outfield.

The Cleveland Americans, his owners, sent Mills to their Three-I farm at Decatur last season and signed him again for seasoning at New Orleans.

At Decatur, Mills hit 285 under the floodlights and roved around center field without making an error.

It was Mills who booted the place-kick that gave the West a 3-0 victory over the East in the Charity football game at San Francisco last winter.

Escaped Prisoner Is Back in Fairfax

Alleged Ring-Leader in Plot Returned From Michigan; Jailed Again.

William Longstreet, colored, 25 years old, who for the last several years has evaded Fairfax County police, is behind the prison bars of the Fairfax Jail again. Longstreet was returned yesterday from Fort Dearborn, Mich., where he was arrested last month on a housebreaking charge, by Deputy Sheriff John B. Dowden.

Longstreet is said to be the ring leader of the five men who dug their way out of the Fairfax County Jail several months ago. He had been brought from the District of Columbia Reformatory to Fairfax two days prior to his escape and was being held to answer a charge of grand larceny.

The original charge against him in Fairfax County involved theft of $100 in cash and jewelry from a house near Lorton, Va. He will now face the grand jury on an additional charge of jail breaking.

ACTION BY PERSHING ON MEMORIAL IS HIT

Woman Protests Erasing of Inscription to Maryland-Trained Regiment.

(United Press.)

A protest that the Battle Monuments Commission, headed by Gen. John J. Pershing, has erased the inscription on a privately-financed monument in France to the officers and men of the 316th Infantry, Seventy-ninth Division, of the A. E. F., was made last night by Mary F. Hill, of Philadelphia. The regiment was trained at Camp Meade, Md.

Mrs. Hill, speaking for the Gold Star Mothers of that Pennsylvania regiment, which also included men from the District of Columbia, asserted that the commission forced the removal of the original inscription which paid tribute specifically to the dead of that particular regiment, and substituted an inscription which did not mention the regiment nor specifically pay tribute to the dead.

The monument, at Verdun, was built by the Hospice of Verdun after the war mothers of the regiment raised $5,000 and contributed it to the French charitable institution.

Mrs. Hill's protest charged that the commission "destroyed" the inscription "In Sacred Memory of Our Dead," and challenged its right to take this action.

The change was made by the commission under authority of a French governmental decree over the refusal of the Mayor of Verdun, she added.

County Officials To Probe Slugging

Prince Georges Citizens Also to Act in Attack on Cameraman.

An inquiry is to be held tomorrow by the Prince Georges County commissioners into the slugging of a newspaper cameraman by a policeman who was attempting to prevent him from taking pictures of Federal witnesses present at an inquest into the Bladensburg, Md., tea house shooting.

The policeman is Constable Howard Slater, appointed for Berwyn district, but who apparently was acting as a county policeman at the time. After striking Thomas McAvoy, of the Washington News, with his blackjack, Slater charged the photographer with being disorderly and with assault. These charges were dismissed when the case was tried in Hyattsville police court.

At the time of the assault on McAvoy, County Policeman Ralph Brown seized a number of plateholders belonging to other cameramen, and also took a camera belonging to The Post. Slater's orders were given by Brown, who received them, he said, from a "man with a badge."

A mass meeting in the Hyattsville armory is to be held Friday night, when citizens of the county will ask an investigation of the force. Petitions asking Gov. Albert C. Ritchie to order such an inquiry are being circulated in the county. A committee to call on the governor is expected to be appointed at the mass meeting.

Support of Chest By Catholics Urged

Holy Name Pastor Lauds Work at St. Vincent de Paul Session.

Describing the Community Chest as "the most constructive force introduced into the community in my time," the Rev. John W. Dowling, pastor of Holy Name Church, made an eloquent appeal for support for the Chest before the quarterly meeting of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul yesterday morning. Father Dowling's talk followed the mass held for the members of the society at the church.

Father Dowling urged every member of the society and of his congregation to take an active interest in the work of the Chest and to be careful about listening to unfavorable comment regarding its work.

Car Burns as Motor Fires Paper Protecting Rum Jars

Paper protecting liquor jars packed about the motor of a liquor-running automobile is an ungainful practice, it was learned yesterday by an alleged bootlegger whose automobile was burned when paper wrapped around the jars caught fire while on the Old Georgetown road, in Montgomery County.

As a result of the fire and the subsequent discovery of the liquor, William Smith, colored, of Bethesda, is charged with possession of liquor, and Patrolman Thomas De Nell, of the Bethesda Substation of the Montgomery County Police, is nursing a badly bruised hip. He was injured when he fell while riding to the fire.

When Patrolmen John Butt, G. W. Linthicum and Webb Heraperder arrived at the fire, most of the alleged contraband had disappeared into the atuomobiles of Sunday tourists.

Four half-gallon jars of alleged liquor, which had been wrapped in paper, were found packed under the radiator hood, where the fire started. Smith was arrested when he came to the Bethesda police station to report his automobile stolen.

DR. CRAIK EXTOLLED IN MEMORIAL EVENT

201st Anniversary of Birth of Washington's Friend Is Observed.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Tribute was paid yesterday by the Washington Society of Alexandria to the memory of Dr. James Craik, first surgeon general of the United States Army and a close friend of George Washington, on the 201st anniversary of his birth.

The ceremony was held in the First Presbyterian Church, of Alexandria, and included the laying of wreaths on Dr. Craik's grave in the old churchyard.

Representative Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, spoke. Referring to Alexandria as the site where Gen. Washington and Dr. Craik built for the future of America, he declared that "the pathway of the past has led us up and the pathway to the future shall lead us on."

The Rev. William Jackson Morton, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, delivered the invocation. He also is chapiain of the Washington Society of Alexandria. Music was played by the United States Army Band, with solos by Mrs. Evelyn Howard Sheridan, accompanied by Miss Margaret Alexander.

William Tyler Page, who was to have been master of ceremonies, was unable to be present, so the program was directed instead by John B. Gordon, chairman of the standing committee of the society.

The Rev. Dr. William B. McIlwaine, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, read a chapter from Dr. Craik's Bible, which now is owned by a member of the Society of the Cincinnati, which Dr. Craik founded.

A roll call of patriotic and other societies present was made, with responses from the Society of the Cincinnati, Society of Descendants of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence, Sons of the Revolution, Sons of the American Revolution, Society of Colonial Wars and Colonial Dames of America, Daughters of the American Revolution, Children of the American Revolution, Grand Lodge of Masons in the District of Columbia, St. Andrews Scottish Society of the District and Baltimore, American Legion, American Legion Auxiliary, American War Mothers, Federation of Huguenot Societies and the Virginia Medical Society.

Judge Josiah A. Van Orsdel spoke briefly. He declared that what the country needs now is a reconsecration at the altar of liberty, more of the spirit of Valley Forge and less of the spirit "of the type of men who invaded Washington last week," and more national defense and less pessimism.

Virginia's Representative.

Gen. Robert U. Patterson, surgeon general of the Army, spoke of Dr. Craik's life. He declared Dr. Craik was "a splendid type of the old-time family physician who set an example of professional skill, courage and devotion to duty that those of today can only try to emulate."

Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia was represented by Col. John W. Williams, secretary of the Virginia Bicentennial Commission, who stressed plans for celebration on January 6 of the marriage of George Washington and Martha Custis in 1759; on January 18 of the election of Washington as chancellor of the College of William and Mary, and on February 22 of the entry of Washington in the House of Burgesses of Virginia in 1759.

Representative Sol Bloom, of New York, chairman of the National Bicentennial Commission, declared that "the people of this country are having the greatest history lesson of all time in tabloid form." He expressed surprise at the lack of public knowledge of Washington's life and history as evidenced by the many questions received by the commission.

The assemblage then went into the churchyard, where on the north side of the old building is the grave of Dr. James Craik, and wreaths were placed by the following: The Washington Society of Alexandria, William Buckner McGroarty; Mount Vernon Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution, Miss Caroline Rust; Children of the Revolution, the Jon Shaw Chapter; Sons of the Revolution, Capt. Victor Martin; Society of Colonial Wars, Dr. Walter Wills; National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Mrs. Caldwell; Society of the Cincinnati, Col. J. S. Taylor; Children of the American Revolution, Mrs. Thaddeus M. Jones; Society of the Descendents of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence, Mrs. L. F. Williams, for the District of Columbia, and Mrs. Belle N. Draper, for the National Society; Sons of the American Revolution, Frank B. Steele; St. Andrew's Scottish Society, Robert W. Bruce.

Taps sounded by Bugler T. A. Bason, of Alexandria Post No. 24, American Legion, closed the services.

Among the descendents of Dr. Craik present was 5-year-old Jennifer Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Preston Williams, of Washington, who is the fifth generation in descent.

Included in the portfolio of this Corporation are amounts of the following securities:
Associated Gas and Electric Company 5% Convertible Certificates.
Utilities Power & Light Corporation 5% Gold Debentures, due 1957.
Holders of the 5% Gold Debentures, due 1954, of this Corporation are hereby given the opportunity to tender all or any portion of their holdings on such basis as they may determine, in exchange for either of the foregoing securities. For the purpose of fixing the exchange basis, the foregoing securities are to be taken at the arbitrary figure of 100.
Adjustment will be made for accrued interest as of December 24, 1931, so that it will be continuous but not overlapping. No tenders will be accepted on the basis of a price in excess of $108, the call price for the Gold Debentures of this Corporation.
Only a limited amount of one or the above listed issues is available to fill tenders. It is suggested, therefore, that holders indicate a second choice of the securities offered, in the event the full amount of securities available for their first choice is taken by lower tenders. Tenders, on a price basis acceptable to the Corporation, will have precedence according to the priority of postmarks thereon. The undersigned reserves the right to accept or reject any tenders in whole or in part.
We are advised by Counsel that if the market value of the securities received is less than the price paid for the Eastern Utilities Investing Corporation 5% Gold Debentures, the difference represents a capital loss and may be treated as a deduction from income under the present Federal Income Tax Law.
Tenders will be accepted until the close of business December 24, 1931. They will be tabulated immediately thereafter, and notice given to all holders whose tenders are rejected and accepted, stating to the latter the time and other details for delivery of the Eastern Utilities Investing Corporation Debentures.
A circular describing the Associated Gas and Electric Company 5% Convertible Certificates, a form for your convenience in making the tender (though it is not required) and information respecting the earnings, etc., of the Corporation will be forwarded on request.

Representative Livingston, of Georgia, has introduced a bill in the House calling for an increase on all public salaries of 20 per cent. The congressman has said that the present scale is not high enough to provide the common comforts of life in Washington.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

YOUNG MR. MELLON'S CHOICE.

PAUL MELLON, son of the Secretary of the Treasury, has gone to work in his father's institution, the Mellon National Bank, of Pittsburgh.

"What about those stories you were going in for a literary career?" he was asked by reporters.

"That's all old stuff," he answered. It's just possible he changed his mind after hearing a book publisher explain why the company preferred not to make a $10 advance at this time.

Still, there is no reason why Mr. Mellon shouldn't be able to pursue a literary career in a bank. In fact, a nice quiet vault might be an ideal place in which to woo the muse. After all, a book on the triumph of love, honor and hard work over poverty and temptation has never been written in a safety deposit vault, and this would seem to be a good time for it.

Tariff Law Called Blight on Farmers

McGill Says Agriculture Report Tries to Show Duties Benefits.

(Associated Press.)

The present tariff law was assailed yesterday by Senator McGill (Democrat), Kansas, as "a blight upon those engaged in agricultural pursuits notwithstanding the effusions of the Secretary of Agriculture in his annual report."

In a statement issued through the Democratic national committee, McGill said the "extortionate rates of the act are on commodities the farmer must buy."

HIT-RUN DEATH CAR OCCUPANTS TO FACE JURY THIS MORNING

Police Claim Confession in Birch Case as Victim's Hat Is Found.

SECOND MAN WITH SAME NAME STRUCK BY AUTO

Norbert Birch, in Hospital, Not Kin of H. A. Birch, Killed Saturday.

Two men alleged to have occupied the hit-and-run automobile which killed Herbert Almond Birch, 60, of 1211 Emerson street northwest, were arrested yesterday by homicide squad detectives and held for the coroner's inquest at 11 o'clock this morning.

William Ernest Wright, 36, 1202 K street northwest, and William E. Nicely, 31, of Walter Reed Hospital, were arrested by Detective Sergts. George Darnall and Dennis Murphy.

Police said Wright confessed he was driving the car when Birch was struck at Georgia avenue and Emerson street northwest. Both men are said to have admitted they had been drinking.

After the accident, police said, the men drove downtown and abandoned the car near where Wright lived. Before that, police said, they drove into a gasoline station at Thirteenth and K streets northwest. There they told the attendant they had "killed a man," James Springman, homicide squad chief, said.

Victim's Hat Found.

At the gas station they discovered the victim's hat stuck near the right headlight of the car. Police found the hat jammed behind a radiator in the K street house.

In determining identity of the car's owner, police went to the K street address and took John W. Tyler, 26, and Blanche C. Sandridge, 36, into custody on investigation charges. They are both being held until the inquest, police said.

Mr. Birch, a foreman in the Postoffice Department, was hit by the car after he had alighted from a street car. Two men riding in the car jumped to the street, removed his body from the front of the automobile and placed it in a passing automobile, operated by James Nutwell, 4425 New Hampshire avenue northwest, who was instructed to carry it to Walter Reed Hospital.

The two men then fled in their car, witnesses told police. Three witnesses observed the accident and gave police the license tag number.

Arrested at Hotel.

Wright was taken into custody in a Pennsylvania avenue hotel and Nicely was arrested at Walter Reed Hospital.

Mr. Birch was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital. He received a fractured skull and internal injuries, physicians said.

Mr. Birch was a native of Falls Church, Va., and lived in this section all his life. He had been with the Postoffice Department the last twelve years.

In the World War he served as a chief petty officer at the Navy Yard in Washington. He is a member of the American Legion.

Friday he celebrated his sixtieth birthday, spending it quietly at home with his family.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Jean Macfarland Birch; a son, Herbert Birch, jr., a patent attorney; two brothers, Walter Birch, of Washington, and Albert, of Chevy Chase, Md.; three sisters, Mrs. Frederick Stite, Washington; Mrs. Richard Newbold, Wayne, Pa., and Mrs. Alfred C. Brown, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed pending a coroner's inquest.

Second Birch Is Hurt.

Norbert Birch, 26 years old, 2801 Adams Mill road northwest, was struck by a hit-and-run driver last night while crossing Eighteenth street near Belmont street northwest. He is in Emergency Hospital under treatment for lacerations of the head and back injuries. His condition is not serious.

Accompanied by his wife, Mary, he was crossing the street after leaving a theater when knocked down. His wife, although not hit by the car, suffered from shock. He was taken to the hospital in a taxicab. He is not related to Herbert A. Birch, who was killed Saturday by a hit-and-run driver.

2 Passengers Rob Taxi Driver of $8

Hold Pistol Against Back and Take Money; Then Escape.

Two unidentified colored men early this morning held up Harry Terry, 27 years old, of Alexandria, Va., at the point of a pistol and robbed him of $8 while he was sitting in his cab in the 1200 block of Delaware avenue southwest.

According to police, the men hired Terry at Third and G street southwest and ordered him to drive to an address in the 1200 block of Delaware avenue southwest. Upon arrival one of the robbers held a pistol against his back and ordered him to hand over his receipts. After Terry complied they ordered him to drive north on Delaware avenue and not look back, whereupon they alighted from the cab and made their escape.

A lookout was broadcast by police.

Skyviews of Capital Suburbs—No. 1

Fairchild Aerial Surveys, Inc.

The white building above the circle of street car tracks is the Rosslyn terminal of the Washington and Old Dominion Railroad. Above this, beyond the line of trees, is the old meat packing house and ice plant, unused for ten years except as an ice depot. The ice house is the flat-roofed part, while the packing plant proper, damaged by fire, can be seen just beyond it.

Above the remains of the packing house is the old brewery, later used for the manufacture of soft drinks. To the right of these is a deep valley leading to the river. Across the Lee Highway, the road to the left of the packing house, are the car barns of the Old Dominion Railroad.

Below the circle of car tracks and to the left of it is the terminal of the Arlington and Fairfax Railway, which will become the main terminal if the Government closes the one at Twelfth street and Pennsylvania avenue. In the lower left corner of the picture are seen a part of the freight yards, and near them, although not shown, are the numerous oil companies' storage tanks and yards.

20 BUS PASSENGERS UNINJURED IN UPSET

Big Vehicle Hits Car Near Laurel, Scales Bank and Falls to Road.

A score of passengers on a Great Eastern bus bound for New York narrowly missed death or injury in a freak accident on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard at Oak Crest, near Laurel, Md., yesterday. As it happened, no one was hurt.

Edward F. Alexander, of Washington, driver of the bus, was passing a line of northbound traffic when Harry Kobre, of 643 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, also going north, pulled out of line, according to the story Alexander told police.

The bus could not swerve further to the left without crashing head-on into southbound automobiles, so Alexander applied his brakes and sounded his horn, but Kobre, he said, kept on pulling to the left. Wet pavements made it dangerous for Alexander to brake his car too quickly, he explained, and the bus crashed into Kobre's car, practically demolishing it.

To avoid further collisions, Alexander said, he aimed his bus at what he thought was a soft dirt bank at the roadside. The bus scaled the bank, turned over, and dropped back to the roadway, where its passengers climbed out, shaken up a bit, but unhurt.

Alexander went to telephone for a relief bus. Meanwhile many motorists stopped to learn what it was all about, until the roadway became impassable before State Patrolmen George Lemottee and Wade L. Smith arrived to clear the traffic.

Just about that time some spectator lit a cigarette and tossed the match into a pool of gasoline which had dripped from a cracked gas line on the bus. A few minutes later, despite efforts of the Laurel Fire Department, nothing remained of the bus except its charred chassis.

A relief bus arrived from Baltimore and brought the northbound passengers back to Washington, where they again were routed toward New York.

Policeman Lamotte arrested the drivers of both machines and arraigned them before Magistrate Harry M. Scott at Laurel on charges of reckless driving. Alexander insisted neither car was going faster than 30 miles an hour, although the accident happened in a 40-mile zone.

Woman's Cry Routs Intruder; Man Booked

The frightened scream of Mrs. Margaret Letina, 5410 Illinois avenue northwest, early yesterday morning put to flight a man who reached through an open bathroom window and grabbed her arm. She said that she had heard no noise of the intruder's approach and her involuntary outcry routed him before she could see his face clearly.

Police of the Thirteenth Precinct, hurried to the scene and after a search of the neighborhood arrested Harry Townsend, 38 years old, who said he lives in New York City. He denied being Mrs. Letina's assailant and she was unable to say definitely whether he was the man. Townsend was booked for investigation.

CLOSET GIRL'S CASE SET FOR WEDNESDAY

Edith Riley, Alleged Victim of Parents, Improving in Hospital.

The case of Edith Riley will be presented on Wednesday to a jury in the District Supreme Court, where the Government will advance evidence against Mr. and Mrs. Lester N. Riley, who are charged with having imprisoned the child for four years in a closet in their home.

For six weeks the child, who will be 13 years old next month, has been under treatment at Gallinger Municipal Hospital. Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, superintendent of the hospital, last night refused to make any specific comment as to the child's mental condition, saying the conclusions reached by mental specialists will be presented in court.

Dr. Bocock did say, however, that the mental and physical condition of the child has vastly improved since her admission to the hospital after her rescue from the alleged confinement in the dingy closet. Great gains have been made in Edith's physical condition, Dr. Bocock said. In the weeks she has been under treatment she has added 16 pounds to her weight.

Other physicians at the hospital said the child seems more alert, in contrast to her apathy which was so pronounced when she was taken from her home. She is manifesting great interest in her surroundings and becomes morose only when questioned on her alleged experiences in the closet, the doctors said.

WOMAN IS INJURED IN CRASH ON BRIDGE

Husband Unhurt, but Auto Is Demolished; Two Other Cars Collide.

One woman was injured and several fatalities were narrowly averted when two collisions occurred a few minutes apart on the slippery thoroughfare of Highway Bridge early yesterday morning.

Mrs. Rita Newby, 27 years old, of 315 Fourteenth street northeast, was removed to Emergency Hospital, in its ambulance, and treated for lacerations and bruises of the scalp and possible fracture of the right leg, incurred when their Washington-bound automobile, operated by her husband, Charles Newby, 25 years old, of the same address, skidded and crashed into a steel girder of the bridge, completely demolishing the car. Newby escaped uninjured. According to police, the cause of the accident was skidding, due to an excessive rate of speed.

A few minutes earlier the Alexandria-bound automobile operated by Courtney Smith, 29 years old, of Alexandria, Va., while attempting to make a turn into the lower road, skidded and collided with a car operated by William Hall, 18 years old, of 1006 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, the force of the impact throwing both cars across the highway.

A 16-year-old girl who gave police the name of Princess Lamp, of 516 C street southeast, a passenger in the car operated by Hall, was removed to the Washington airport restaurant and treated for shock. Marguerite Hall, 15 years old, a sister of Hall, of the same address, and Allan Widle, 30 years old, of 1359 Harvard street northwest, both passengers in Hall's car, escaped injury. According to police, the accident was unavoidable, due to slippery roads.

Mrs. Leila Marshall, 50 years old, of 3703 Bangor street southeast, received slight injuries when struck by a street car while crossing the street at Eleventh and Pennsylvania avenue northeast yesterday afternoon. She was admitted to Emergency Hospital, where it was said she had suffered injuries to the chest and nose and laceration about the face. The street car was operated by Gordon Whiteacre.

Bullet in Dice Fight Goes Through 2 Men

One bullet struck two colored men in a fight at an alleged dice game yesterday in a house on B street near Fifteenth street southeast, inflicting a serious wound on one who is in grave condition at Casualty Hospital.

Edward King, 24 years old, of 26 Fourteenth street southeast, was shot in the left arm and back. The bullet passed through him and struck Francis Medley, 18 years old, of 1529 North Carolina avenue northeast. It struck him in the chest and passed through his right lung. A lookout has been broadcast for the assailant.

Southern Society Heads Will Be Chosen Tonight

Officers of the Southern Society will be elected at the first meeting of the season at Willard Hotel tonight, the list of speakers including Dr. George C. Havenner, executive vice president of the District bicentennial committee, and Menalcus Lankford, United States representative from Virginia.

Mr. Lankford has been proposed for the post of president by the nominating committee, who has also named Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, representative from Florida, as vice president. The program will begin at 9:15 o'clock.

'Possum Falls In Net of Law During Outing

An opossum was caught last night at Eleventh street and Maryland avenue northeast, by two Second Precinct policemen.

Patrolmen B. H. Allen and E. H. Braxton, returning from a trip to Gallinger Hospital, where they had taken a prisoner, noticed the animal in the road.

After a brief chase it was captured. Its existence will soon be terminated, it is confidently predicted, for Patrolman Braxton has a taste for possum.

Earlier in the day two Second Precinct policemen captured a stray monkey, giving rise to a belief that a menagerie had been liberated in the District.

ARMED TAXI ROBBER TAKEN AFTER CHASE

Detective, on Way to Talk With Holdup Victims, Sights Stolen Cab.

Less than four hours after a recommendation had been sent through for his demotion to uniform duty, Detective Sergt. Charles E. Mansfield early yesterday captured the lone robber, who, police said, had stolen a taxicab and begun a series of holdups Saturday night.

The man, held by police on investigation charges, is David Livien, 22, who until last Tuesday had been employed as master of ceremonies at a dance marathon here.

Sergt. Mansfield and Headquarters Chauffeur Joseph Caw were on their way to 1718 Webster street northwest to obtain the report of the holdup of Margaret Mannix and E. L. Sullenberger, who had been robbed by a taxicab driver armed with a pistol.

Near Fourteenth and U streets northwest, the two policemen spotted the cab, which had been taken from L. H. Smith earlier in the night. They pursued it to Seventeenth and S streets, where the operator stopped and fled on foot.

Although they had caught only a fleeting glance of the man they cruised in the neighborhood and recognized him walking on Fourteenth street near S street, they assert. Livien was arrested and, police said, admittted stealing the cab from Smith, attempting to hold up two colored men whom he took as passengers, and taking Sullenberger and Miss Mannix from a restaurant at Fourteenth and H streets northwest to the Webster street address, where he drew the pistol on them but did not take any money when they said that they possessed only change.

Seal Sale Proceeds Near Halfway Mark

Proceeds in the sale of Christmas seals for the Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis have nearly reached the halfway mark toward a goal of $50,000, it was announced yesterday. The present total collected is $23,000.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, will make an appeal to the public to support the sale in an address over the National Broadcasting Co. at 6 o'clock Thursday night.

Oil Station Robbed of $80.

Cutting the glass in a rear window thieves early yesterday entered a oil station at Upshur street and Rock Creek Church road northwest and stole $80 from a desk drawer. The robbery was discovered by Thomas Higgins, manager of the station.

Monkey Serves as Marshal Of Parade on Sixth Street

A mischievous monkey led an unscheduled parade yesterday on Sixth street northwest, contrary to police regulations. Though not native to these parts, he soon oriented himself. The parade of which he took command was composed of policemen, pedestrians and yelling youngsters.

The money first appeared in the back yard at 1104 Sixth street northwest. Mrs. Margaret Williams made the visitor feel at home by feeding him bananas. While she was giving him a piece of candy, his sharp teeth slightly nipped her hand.

Frightened by the crowd he had drawn the monkey walked into the empty cage of a household pet and the door was closed upon him.

The ado created by the monkey's visit caused a call to police headquarters. Patrolmen J. Apostolides and A. E. Fredette answered. Like all policemen, they wanted to make a thorough investigation of the case, so the cage was opened.

The monkey scampered free and up the side of a house. From there he swung from eaves and gables to trees and led a chase over roof tops. Shouting crowds gathered below. Eventually the monkey clambered down to the street.

He ambled along Sixth street with half a hundred pedestrians after him. It might have been the grand finale to a show. The monkey gamboled ahead, stopping occasionally to cast an impish grin at the tip-toe ballet. Automobiles jammed along the street.

Then the animal clambered into a vacant house, where a coat was thrown over him and he was captured. He chattered protestingly against being bundled into a coat. Now he is hurling maledictions at every one from a cage at the District pound.

Police are seeking its owner's whereabouts.

SELF-REALIZATION HELD MEASURE OF HUMAN HAPPINESS

Feeling of Fellowship With God and Man Needed, Says Pastor.

FAITH IN IMMORTALITY ROUNDS OUT FULL LIFE

Rev. H. W. Burgan Preaches on "Life's Values" at Hamline Church.

"Religion is not a thing to be discussed and quarreled over. It is a thing to be enjoyed," declared the Rev. H. W. Burgan, pastor of Hamline Methodist Episcopal Church, preaching yesterday morning on the subject, "Life's Values."

"Psychologists tell us that the ultimate aim of man, the one thing above everything else he seeks, is self-realization," the pastor said. "He seeks this, we are further informed, because the sense of completeness or self-realization is accompanied by happiness. I think we can accept the conclusions of these students of the human mind at this point, and agree that what we all desire is happiness, and for this we strive.

"If the aim of life is happiness, if men seek it, is it attainable? Certainly most men have failed to find it. Is happiness for us? The Greeks answered in the negative and the Old Testament has some of this despondency.

Jesus Believed in Happiness.

"In spite of the numerous authorities that may be quoted I suspect the vast majority of men hopefully expect to attain some degree of satisfaction, happiness, here and there they strive hopefully, believing that as a result of their labors happiness will come.

"Many persons seem to have pinned their hopes for happiness upon things, material conditions, states of life, pure and simple things. Most of them were disillusioned before life ended.

"Now, Jesus believed men could be happy; that blessedness could be found in this life; that completion of life could be realized. He was in every sense an optimist. His gospel was one of cheer. He was born amid the songs both of heaven and of earth. Yes, according to Jesus, man can have completeness of life, accompanied with happiness, but he need not seek it, my text says, in earthly things, in their possession, in their abundance.

"The question that remains to be answered now is: In what does fullness of life here consist; how may satisfaction be found; how can we be happy?

Three Phases Are Given.

"Happiness is the feeling we experience when all the instinctive emotions are expressed in harmony. Such happiness abides. How can we reach this state? That is our present question. It consists in three things.

"The first is a conscious fellowship with God through worship. There is no happiness comparable to experiencing through worship the reality of God. Our souls crave something beyond ourselves. When we find God and lose ourselves in Him, then are we coming into abiding happiness and there is no happiness which does not abide. Then we are the recipients of that of which Jesus preached on the mountainside—blessedness."

The speaker pointed out the second item as "intimate fellowship with men through service." The third point was described as "abiding fellowship with the immortals through faith."

"To complete life, one must accept in death no interruption to one's doings. Personal identity must persist through death. For countless ages nature's God has been working, and gradually has brought things up to the point of personality. This is eternal, this persists," Dr. Burgan ended.

WORLD IS NOT DEAF TO CHRIST, IS VIEW

Still Eager to Hear Positive Religious Message, Says Rev. H. A. Kester.

"The world is still eager to hear a positive religious message," said the Rev. Hirl A. Kester, speaking yesterday at the Congress Street Methodist Church.

"The Herald of Christ" was Dr. Kester's topic, the text being taken from the sixth verse of the first chapter of John, "There was a man sent from God whose name was John."

"John the Baptist is one of the most interesting characters in human history. We have more concerning his birth and babyhood than almost any other character in the Bible and then we lose him until manhood," Dr. Kester said.

"We see him coming out of the desert and preaching in the wilderness. It is hard to find a more striking picture anywhere than this man of the desert preparing the way for the Lord with his message."

Dr. Kester pointed out that John's message was positive in character and said, "Jesus called special attention to this."

"John C. Fremont is called the great pathfinder because he found a way over the Rocky Mountains and made it possible for wagon trains to follow John the Baptist was a pathfinder to Christ. Fremont found a way over mountains, around rugged places. John the Baptist pulled down the hills, built up the valleys, made a highway for the coming of the Prince of Peace.

"This illustrates our duty at this very moment. We must prepare the way for His coming. But how, you ask? If you know a person or family unsaved, it is your duty to help prepare the way, to open the path for Christ to enter. At this season of the year, you all have a wonderful opportunity. Use your friendship, business relations, all your power. You must sometimes build bridges by kind words or gifts, but what noble or grander work can you do? Christmas affords you wonderful opportunity to prepare or open the way that the Prince of Peace and Saviour of the world may enter and bless. Human love, the most glorious thing on earth, becomes more divine and precious than anything when the golden chain of Christian love binds us all to Christ," Dr. Kester concluded.

Milk Wagon Horse Rampage Arouses Exclusive District

Hotel dwellers and other residents of fashionable Sixteenth street were startled yesterday morning by a clanging, crashing uproar and poked sleepy heads out of windows to see that a milk wagon horse had ended a brief rampage by jamming itself and the wagon inextricably in an areaway of the Roosevelt Hotel after leaping an iron railing.

Norman Roos, 1746 Lanier place northwest, driver of the wagon, said the animal became frightened after he had alighted to deliver milk at 1620 Fuller street northwest and galloped madly to Sixteenth and started south.

Bottles of milk crashed merrily along the trail of the runaway. Cruising taxicabs and late pedestrians hurriedly sought safe havens. At Florida avenue the horse trampled through a hedge on the lawn of the hotel, leaped an iron railing surrounding the areaway and came to a painful halt.

Nearly half an hour later Roos, who had hailed a taxicab to search for his wagon and horse, came upon the crowd drawn by the trapped animal.

The wagon was badly damaged and most of the milk was spilled. The horse had to be treated by a veterinarian. Considerable difficulty was experienced in getting the equipage out of the narrow areaway.

A search was started for the man described by Griffith.
